THE SEA GULL LIBRARY

Edited by O. F. Theis

Cover-design by Orland Campbell

The Sea Gull Library is a new series of books in belles-lettres, designed to include works of the world's literature, which have hitherto not been translated into English, or which for various reasons are not known except to the few. In the selection of titles the only standard that has been kept in view is that the work in question must have the quality of literature, and be more than a mere ephemeral production. Otherwise there are no restrictions, neither of country of origin, nor of period, nor of any particular school. There probably never has been a time when there was so much interest in literature as such, as at present, and it is hoped that through the Sea Gull Library many a work of permanent value may be made available in convenient form and at a reasonable price to ever-widening circles of readers. Each volume will contain an introduction. Special attention has been given to the make-up and binding of the volumes, to the end that they may be a thing of beauty which it will be a pleasure to handle and to possess. The series is edited by O. F. Theis. Bound in gray vellum de luxe cloth of two shades with a cover-design by Orland Campbell. Price, per volume, $1.50.

The first volumes to be issued are:

Francis Jammes

ROMANCE OF THE RABBIT. Authorized translation from the 14th French edition by Gladys Edgerton. Francis Jammes is the poet of the French landscape and of the simple heart. In his work hovers both the spirit of Virgil and of the gentle St. Francis of Assisi. He tells of Rabbit's fears and joys, of his life on this earth, of his pilgrimmage to paradise with St. Francis and his animal companions, and of his death. The volume includes also a number of short tales and impressions.

Jens Peter Jacobsen

MOGENS and other stories. Translated from the Danish by Anna Grabow. The author is known as one of the greatest stylists in Scandinavian literature, and his novels Niels Lyhne and Marie Grubbe are classics. The stories in the present volume are pastels of wonderful delicacy, and filled with the keenest psychological observation.

HISTORICAL MINIATURES

A SERIES OF MONOGRAPHS

Edited by Dr. F. L. Glaser

Each of the volumes in this series will consist of an eyewitness account of one of the most impressive or crucial periods of history. The volumes in the collection will be selected especially for the intrinsic qualities of observations and the skill of the narrator in presenting a true picture of his time. It seems that the undertaking is particularly timely at the present when human society is passing through a period of transformation greater than any previous one. The events of the past are the guide-posts to the future. The old truism that the truth is stranger than fiction is amply borne out by these monographs. The editor will make it a special point to avoid the republication of works which are already easily accessible. He will select on the contrary works which are, perhaps, even more interesting because less generally known. The volumes will be valuable not only to the general reader, but also to the student of history. Where the original is too long to come within the scope of the monograph, the editor will select the salient passages, but always in the text it will be the contemporary who writes. The first of the volumes in the series will be:

SCENES FROM THE COURT OF PETER THE GREAT. Based on the Latin Diary of Friedrich Korb, a Secretary of the Austrian Legation at the Court of Peter the Great. This is a vivid description of the life in Moscow toward the end of the 17th Century when, under the impetus of Peter the Great, Russia was finding itself. One of the most thrilling portions of the book is the description of the rebellion and punishment of the Stryelitz, the Russian guard of the period. Cloth, about $2.00. Ready Autumn, 1920.

POPE ALEXANDER VI AND HIS COURT. Based on the Diary of Johannes Burchardus, Master of Ceremonies to Alexander VI. The spirit of the Renaissance at its height fills this volume, and we are given an intimate and vivid portrait of the life at Rome as it was lived under the great Borgia. In preparation.

Dmitri Merejkovski

THE MENACE OF THE MOB. Translated from the Russian by Guilbert Guerney. This great Russian hardly needs any introduction to English readers for he is already well-known through his famous historical novels like the Death of the Gods, Leonardo da Vinci, etc. In the present volume, however, it is not the novelist, drawing gorgeous pageants of the past, who speaks, but the philosopher and God-seeker. These essays are both a warning and a prophecy, and, though written a number of years ago, it is amazing how many of the events that he has foretold have actually come to pass. They are more valuable even for the insight they give of the spiritual ferment and crisis through which Russia was passing, and of which the present turmoil is the harvest. Will it be a good harvest or an evil to the human race that is to come? This is one of the problems that occupy the author, and what he has to say is more important and illuminating than thousands of editorials and leading articles. Boards, $1.50.

John Varney

SKETCHES OF SOVIET RUSSIA. Whole Cloth and Patches. An unusual book by a young American who spent a good part of the turbulent years of 1918 and 1919 in Russia. The author's method of approach is neither one of condemnation nor of praise. He sketches with keen insight the scenes he has seen and the life about him so that the reader gains, perhaps, a more vivid picture of the spirit that is animating revolutionary Russia, than he would from many a more pretentious volume. This is especially true of the imaginary dialogue which closes the book. Here the different political doctrines which have torn Russia asunder are analyzed and opposed to each other with fine dramatic skill, and the reader is left to draw his own conclusions. Anyone interested in modern Russia and her problems, which are also a world-problem, will find this a valuable and instructive volume. Cloth, about $2.25.

New Books

Evelyn Scott

PRECIPITATIONS. A volume of poems. This volume contains the best and most characteristic of an author whose name is coming more and more to the front among contemporary poets. She has a penetrating vision, which is all her own, and sees old things under new aspects. There is a dominating passion of seeking the essence of things, and at times the way in which she tears away the discreet and sentimental investitures seems almost heartless. The keynote of her work is an uncompromising honesty; she does not accept merely because something is handed down by traditions. There is nothing in her poetry of the old poetical tags and labels, and she has equally avoided the pitfall at the other extreme of mere verbal dexterity and decoration. There is flesh and blood in her work, because each thing she tests out by herself. It is this which lends an astringent and unique beauty to her work. Boards, $1.50.

Paul Gauguin

NOA NOA. In Noa Noa Paul Gauguin has written the story of his life on Tahiti, in the South Seas. He tells us how he first sojourned with the Europeans in Tahiti; then in that part of the country where they rarely appear, and finally how he went alone into the wilderness to be alone in an Elysian nature. Here he found courage to take a wife, not Titi, beloved of Europeans, but the chaste Tehura, who had never seen a white man. With her he shares his hut. And here an idyl unfolds itself, while in the background the old story of the conquest of the island by what we call European culture goes on. Tehura knows nothing of him, he knows nothing of her. Sex brings them nearer together. He tells her as much as he can. The child listens to him quietly and he admires her silence. Not until he has unbosomed himself completely does she speak to him in her turn, filling the old empty European with the knowledge, the legends, the poetry, the genius of the Maoris. They begin to love each other.

"It is a hymn to that new spirit that pushes boundaries of art toward their ultimate possibilities; it is a shedding of the straightjacket for the illimitable satisfaction of free nudity in a world of sunshine and warm rains. . . . One might take the famous description of Theophile Gautier's Mademoiselle de Maupin and call Noa Noa a 'golden book of sound and sense'."—The New York Sun.

"This book holds in store a rare, rare treat for the simple. One's only quarrel is with its brevity."—The Bookman.

Reproductions of ten of Gauguin's most striking paintings of the Tahitian series have been added. Fourth edition. Boards, $2.00.

Winfred Porter Truesdell

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, Engraved and Lithographed Portraits of. An authoritative book on the portraiture of Lincoln and a descriptive check-list of all the known engravings, lithographs, etc., with a complete collection of the life photographs and their history. In 2 volumes, octavo. Strictly limited to 360 sets: Collector's Edition, 325 sets, price about $45.00; Connoisseur's Edition, 35 sets on Japan vellum, price about $150.00.

Special Descriptive Circular on Request.

Jeremiah

BOOK OF JEREMIAH, including the Lamentations. With 15 full-page drawings by William Saphier. Few books in the Old Testament can equal the Book of Jeremiah in poetic power and majesty. The bold prophet, who stood out against the enervating tendencies of his age only to gain imprisonment and the hatred of party and faction, is one of the great tragic figures in literature. For forty years he issued warning after warning, but the ears of his people were deaf. He alone foresaw the approaching doom of the kingdom and the impending disaster, and as tradition has it was ultimately stoned to death by his own countrymen. For those that can see below the surface there is a lesson too in this noble book of the Old Testament for the modern world, where thrones have tumbled like houses of cards and nations have risen and fallen in rapid succession. The drawings of Saphier are saturated with the spirit of the book, and make live for us the figure of the great prophet and the times in which he labored. This edition is limited to 975 numbered copies, handsomely printed in small quarto, on antique paper, and bound in Italian boards with Irish linen back. Price, about $7.50.

The Jack Lorimer Series

By WINN STANDISH

ALL COPYRIGHT TITLES
FIVE VOLUMES

Handsomely Bound in Cloth. Full Library Size.

PRICE, 75 CENTS PER VOLUME. NET.....

CAPTAIN JACK LORIMER; or, The Young Athlete of Millvale High.

Jack Lorimer is a fine example of the all-around American high-school boy. His fondness for clean, honest sport of all kinds will strike a chord of sympathy among athletic youths.

JACK LORIMER'S CHAMPIONS; or, Sports on Land and Lake.

There is a lively story woven in with the athletic achievements, which are all right, since the book has been O.K'd by Chadwick, the Nestor of American sporting journalism.

JACK LORIMER'S HOLIDAYS; or, Millvale High in Camp.

It would be well not to put this book into a boy's hands until the chores are finished, otherwise they might be neglected.

JACK LORIMER'S SUBSTITUTE; or, The Acting Captain of the Team.

On the sporting side, the book takes up football, wrestling, and tobogganing. There is a good deal of fun in this book and plenty of action.

JACK LORIMER, FRESHMAN; or, From Millvale High to Exmouth.

Jack and some friends he makes crowd innumerable happenings into an exciting freshman year at one of the leading Eastern colleges. The book is typical of the American college boy's life, and there is a lively story, interwoven with feats on the gridiron, hockey, basketball and other clean, honest sports for which Jack Lorimer stands.

THE VERY LATEST WORDS HAVE BEEN INCLUDED

Aerodrome, Aeroplane, Banzai, Black-hand, Camorra, Dope, Frazzle, Joy-rider, Molly-coddle. Push-ball, Nature-faker, sleeping-sickness, Taxi-cab and many others that have come into use since the last revision of the older dictionaries.

WITH USEFUL APPENDICES ON

Terms and Measures used in Physics, Engineering, etc. Foreign Words, Phrases, and Sayings; Abbreviations and Contractions; Forms of Address; Moneys of the World; Weights and Measures; Principal Mechanical Movements Illustrated.

The publishers believe that they have succeeded in producing

The Best and Most Compact Low-Priced Lexicon Obtainable

It combines a judicious condensation of bulkier dictionaries with the most modern meaning and pronunciation of English words. Special efforts were made in the orthography to give the best usage of the United States, and where two spellings were almost equally recognized they are both given.

The system adopted in indicating pronounciation is by respelling, the key being always printed in the lower margin of the pages.

The uncertainties arising from the conjugation of irregular verbs, the plurals or irregular nouns, etc., have been provided for in the different form shown in connection with the words to which they belong. Thus the forms cropping, cropped, and cropt are given with the different verbs to crop; dying and died with die; the plurals of the noun die, i. e., dies and dice, are plainly distinguished; with dictum is shown its plural dicta, etc.

The appendices will prove especially valuable, in particular that one in which the latest terms commonly used in Electricity, Engineering, Physics, etc., are tabulated and explained at length, and the pictorial appendix which illustrates movements and devices in mechanics.

Finally, the publishers believe that the clearness of the definitions, the careful discrimination of the senses of the words, the large amount of matter the book contains, together with its typographical excellence, combine features which will appeal to the American who has use for a condensed lexicon.

Classics of International Law

THIS series, which includes the classic works connected with the history and development of international law, was undertaken by the Carnegie Institution of Washington in 1906, at the suggestion of Mr. James Brown Scott, then Solicitor for the Department of State, under whose supervision as General Editor the series has since been published. On January 1, 1917, the project was transferred to the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the publication of the series is being continued by the Endowment's Division of International Law, of which the General Editor of the Classics is the Director.

THE republication of these Classics has been undertaken principally on account of the difficulty of procuring the texts in convenient form for scientific study. The text of each author is reproduced photographically, so as to lay the source before the reader without the mistakes which creep into a newly printed text. An introduction is prefixed to each work, giving the necessary biographical details concerning its author and stating the importance of the text and its place in international law. Tables of errata in the original are added when necessary, and notes to clear up doubts and ambiguities or to correct mistakes in the text are supplied. Each of the Classics is specially edited by an expert in international law and is accompanied by an English version made expressly for the series by a competent translator.

The Century Co.'s New Books

THE PURPLE HEIGHTS. By Marie Conway Oemler, author of "Slippy McGee," etc. 12mo, 400 pages. Frontispiece. Probable price $2.00

This is Mrs. Oemler's latest novel, and it is as rich in laughter and tears, in thrillingly dramatic situations, and in all those other elements that endear a story to a great public, as was the author's first astonishing success, "Slippy McGee."

Peter Devereaux Champneys' widowed mother lived in a three-room house in Riverton, South Carolina, and this boy was the last of the once powerful family of the Champneys. She died of too little food and too much work, and the little boy, who already had been pronounced a dunce at school, became an odd-job youngster in the town and a fisherman on the river. And his beloved mother, dying, had told him to raise the name of Champneys to greatness again.

Peter saw the "purple heights" afar, and he felt that he had discovered a way to achieve his mother's ambition. Riverton, South Carolina, promoted him from odd jobs to clerk in a hardware store and could do no more.

Peter did not disappoint his mother who had said she would know when he reached the "purple heights." By way of New York and Paris, by way of toil and suffering and the gift that Riverton could not see, by way of marriage to an unknown girl who hated him and then to an unknown woman who loved him, Peter at last achieved the "purple heights."

MAC OF PLACID. By T. Morris Longstreth, author of "The Adirondacks," etc. 12mo, 400 pages. Frontispiece. Probable price $1.90

A new "Lorna Doone".

A thrilling love story set amid the snows and pine forests of the Adirondacks Mountain country. The action takes place at a time when the Adirondacks region was settled almost entirely by loggers, hunters and trappers, a few farmers and a handful of men and women seeking relief in its pure air from the great white plague. It is as full of action, color, and vigor as the most robust Western novel, but it has in addition a richness and variety of appeal that few novels of the last ten years have offered.

One of the characters is Robert Louis Stevenson, who spent some time, it will be remembered, at Saranac Lake. He appears in this novel in his gayest, most playful, most amiable mood, and on the side of the hero scheming and fighting against an amazingly resourceful villain for a mountain girl worth all the elaborate campaign waged by Mac and R. L. S. to win her.

Mr. Longstreth knows the Adirondacks country as intimately as a guide, he loves it all with an enthusiasm that is contagious. "Mac of Placid" is as invigorating as a breeze from the snow-fed lakes on a hot, stuffy day. The publishers recommend this red-blooded story with the utmost confidence.

TURN ABOUT TALES. By Alice Hegan Rice, author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," etc., and Cale Young Rice, author of "Shadowy Thresholds," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Frontispiece. Probable price $1.90

Ten stories of varied settings and of unusual excellence, the title of the volume indicating the fact that the two authors alternate in the table of contents.

The famous author of "Mrs. Wiggs" needs no introduction as a teller of short-stories. Nor does Mr. Rice need an introduction to the reading public, except in his new role of story writer; heretofore he has been known for his poetry. But the true short-story is akin to the dramatic poem, in which form Mr. Rice has done extraordinary work, and his five stories in this volume are marked by the passion, power and beauty that might be expected.

In her five stories Mrs. Rice shows again those marvelous gifts of humor, tenderness and narrative power that have endeared her to a multitude of readers in all parts of the world.

IN THE HOUSE OF ANOTHER. By Beatrice Mantle, author of "Gret," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Frontispiece. Probable price $1.90

When she came to, after the automobile accident, she was in a luxuriously-appointed room which she did not recognize. She got out of bed and looked at herself in the mirror. This beautiful face was not hers. Was she crazy? Or had her soul and that of the woman in the other car exchanged bodies? Anyway, she must say nothing, and watch, and be careful. They might put her in an asylum.

And the next morning she went down to breakfast. A handsome man, whose manner was polite and yet very puzzling, was at the table. She gathered that this was her husband. But, she told herself, she had never married anybody.

Thus begins this fascinating psychic, love and mystery story set in one of the large cities of the West. The heroine starts out to trail herself, to discover who she is, to find out about this puzzling, appealing man who is her "husband." She enters a jungle of conflicting and thrilling circumstances. How she works out her fate makes one of the most enthralling and most satisfying stories of the season.

LIGHTING THE HOME. By M. Luckiesh of the Research Laboratory of the General Electric Company and author of "Artificial Light," etc. 12mo, 200 pages. Illustrated. Probable price $1.75

This is a pioneer book. It ranks with books on interior decoration and furniture as a help toward transforming a house into a home. It opens up possibilities in this direction hitherto undreamed of by most householders. The book is by an internationally known expert on the subject; it is practical in that it offers advice on all sorts of lighting problems and it is fascinating reading as well.

The author says in his preface: "Complete control over the distribution and quality of light is possible. The former provides the 'values' and the latter the drapery of color. 'Painting with light' is not merely a metaphorical phrase; it is accomplished by the lighting artist. If the householder will consider lighting as seriously as he does decoration and furnishing, he will find artificial light a controllable, convenient, inexpensive, mobile medium—a powerful ally in making a house a home."

THE MIDDLE PASSAGE. By L. Frank Tooker, author of "Under Rocking Skies," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Frontispiece. Probable price $1.90

Here is a fascinating story of the sea by an author who knows and loves it. His forbears were men of the quarter-deck, and he slipped out of a Long Island port for foreign parts at the hoary age of six months. He grew up in a seaport, breathed its air and absorbed its traditions, and all his time during childhood and early manhood not claimed by school and college he spent on board ships.

And then immediately after his graduation from Yale, and since he settled down to a literary career, Mr. Tooker has gotten back to ships whenever opportunity offered. Readers who themselves know wind and waves and sailing vessels will revel in the easy accuracy with which he deals with the intricacies of his craft.

"The Middle Passage" was the dangerous way of the slave-ships that brought their human cargoes from Africa to North America, and the story is set at a time when the slavers were compelled to run the perilous gauntlet of the war-ships trying to prevent the traffic out of Africa. The adventures of the hero, who was accidentally involved in the slave trade, make a thrilling narrative; and his love for a girl as pure as the slave-trade was vile weaves through the story the golden thread of romance by which, in the end, he achieves the greatest conquest of his life.

The story is beautifully presented. Mr. Tooker's style is a thing of joy to readers who appreciate a literary craftsmanship fine, restrained, and passionately just.

GALLOPS 1 AND 2. By David Gray. 16mo, 481 pages. Illustrated.

Probable price $1.90

Stories for lovers of horses.

This is a new edition of "Gallops 1" and "Gallops 2," two popular books of fiction set in the world of sport, both being here combined in one volume. This collection of stories, all capitally told, recounts the bright sayings and interesting doings of people who love and rear horses, ride and drive horses, buy, sell, and sometimes exchange horses, talking horses always. They are wealthy, well-bred, agreeable, and very entertaining people; and David Gray's stories of them and their horses are extremely readable.

A STUDY OF WOMEN DELINQUENTS IN NEW YORK STATE. By Mabel R. Fernald, Mary H. S. Hayes, Almena Dawley; with a statistical chapter by Beardsley Ruml and a preface by Katherine Bement Davis, formerly New York Commissioner of Corrections. Royal 8vo, 700 pages. With many graphs and charts.

Probable price $5.00

In this book the authors have written down a vast amount of accurate and organized information about the women of New York State who have come in contact with the official representatives of the law. The material has been gathered from every available trustworthy source by a number of trained investigators, and it has been sifted and coördinated with the utmost care. The book is a diagnosis for the purpose of working more intelligently toward a cure, not only in New York State, of course, but everywhere, for the chief problems are universal.

SAMUEL LYLE, CRIMINOLOGIST. By Arthur Crabb. 12mo, 300 pages. Frontispiece.

Probable price $1.75

The hero of this series of extraordinarily clever mystery stories is Samuel Lyle, lawyer by profession, unraveller of baffling crime tangles by avocation. He follows his avocation with the intense enthusiasm that a man gives to his beloved hobby, and the reader of these stories can not help following with something of the same interest the trails along which the great criminologist pursues his prey.

Mr. Crabb is an author just arrived. He is worth watching. He brings to this type of fiction a fresh note that is gratifying to readers of mystery stories. His style is delightful. The publishers recommend the book with the utmost confidence.

THE MAKING OF HERBERT HOOVER: A BIOGRAPHY. By Rose Wilder Lane, author of "Diverging Roads," etc., and Charles K. Field. 8vo, 300 pages. Illustrated.

Probable price $3.50

Hoover and America—their life-stories read alike. No matter what other book you have read on Hoover you will not know him until you read this one.

The most famous private citizen in the world and the most loved is Herbert Hoover. To millions of people he is the symbol of America. And yet the story of this man's life, which reads like a modern fairy tale, and the personality behind the name are all but unknown to a majority of his countrymen. This book tells who and what Herbert Hoover is, giving in full detail the facts of those early years that mean so much in the formation of a man's character.

Charles K. Field has known Mr. Hoover for thirty years. He was a classmate of his at college. He has kept in close touch with him ever since. He and Rose Wilder Lane have had access to letters and diaries and other accurate and intimate sources of material invaluable in explaining how he developed along the lines that made him what he is.

Mrs. Lane's gift of narrative and of vivid characterization were never put to more effective use than in this story of an international hero whose life is one almost mythically splendid in its achievements and entirely typical of the growth of his country

THE LIFE AND WORK OF SIR WILLIAM VAN HORNE. By W. Vaughan. Illustrated from photographs. Royal octavo, 300 pages. Price $5.00.

Here is the remarkable record of a towering figure in the history of this continent. A descendant of one of the oldest New York families and born on the American frontier, where his father died when the lad was only eleven, he waged a grim fight against poverty until he rose, step by step, from the lowest to the highest rank in the railway profession. As a young man he literally grew up with the railroads, and the knowledge acquired enabled him to build the first railroad through the "Great Lone Land"—the Canadian Pacific—the most spectacular piece of railroad construction on record. Great as a constructive genius he was still greater as a man. Noted on two continents for his hospitality and rare charm, he numbered as personal friends not only all the great men of Canada and the United States, but also had an extended acquaintance among the elect of the world. He was a man of distinguished culture; his interests were as wide and as varied as his friendships.

SEA-POWER IN AMERICAN HISTORY. By Herman F. Krafft and Walter B. Norris, Associate Professors, U. S. Naval Academy. Introduction by Rear-Admiral W. S. Benson, U. S. N. 8vo, 384 pages. Illustrated. Probable price $4.00

This book tells what our country's fighting ships have meant to it throughout its history. It should be of unusual interest to the general reader, especially as it presents a connected story of a side of our history the importance of which too few Americans realize. Because most readers have read the history of our fighting ships as part of a general history of the country, its continuity, its tremendous growth, its meaning to America as an international power have failed to make the impression that it should.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AMERICA. By F. A. Sherwood. 175 illustrations from photographs. 8vo, 375 pages. Probable price $4.00

In 1918 the author made a business trip through Panama to Peru, south through Chili and then over the Andes to Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil. He saw a large part of the countries through which he traveled. Wherever he went he collected innumerable photographs and jotted down notes about the people and the things that especially interested him.

Upon his return home he went over his notes and photographs and put them together in book form. The result is this absorbing, bright, and unique book of travel, quite different from any other book of its kind yet published. It is a collection of brief clear-cut descriptions of places and impressions, and short vivifying comments on people and incidents, profusely illustrated with photographs. It shows South America in a new light.

IT'S A GOOD OLD WORLD. By Bruce Barton, author of "More Power To You," etc. 16mo, 224 pages. Probable price $1.50

It is a good old world, and Bruce Barton does the reader a good turn in making him feel that it is. This is a book of wholesome stimulation, of helpful common sense, of illuminating side-lights on life as it is lived and must be lived.

Mr. Barton has won a following of thousands of readers to whom he speaks in inspired editorials on the everyday things that are so important to you and me and the family around the corner. They are everyday things, and because they are they seem to him tremendously important—and so they are. He writes with an irresistible eloquence, in a style of crystal clearness, and with a warm spirit of comradeship that helps the reader to feel his own kinship with you and me and that family around the corner.

AMERICAN POLICE SYSTEMS. By Raymond B. Fosdick, author of "European Police Systems," etc. 8vo, 320 pages. Probable price $2.00

This is an accurate, well-organized, vigorously written report on the police systems of our country by the one man in our country who is most competent to write about them. As a representative of the Rockefeller Bureau of Social Hygiene Mr. Fosdick, after a brilliant career in various important positions in the New York City government, began the study of both the American and the European police organizations. His first book on the subject, "European Police Systems," received a most extraordinary reception from both the public and the press.

His new book, "American Police Systems," is of immediate importance to this country. It points out the weaknesses of the system and suggests proper remedies. It brings to bear, for purposes of helpful comparison, the outstanding facts of the police organizations abroad.

As there is no branch of American municipal government quite so important as that which embraces the everyday guardians of the life and property of every citizen and his wife and children, so there is no branch which demands so insistently that he understand it. "American Police Systems" is an absolutely indispensable book to the intelligent American citizen.

THE PLEASURES OF COLLECTING. By Gardner Teall. 8vo, 350 pages. Many illustrations. Probable price $4.00

Mr. Teall is an authority on his subject. This book is filled with expert information which should be extremely valuable to readers interested in the realm of antiques American, European, and Oriental. Moreover, the author writes about collecting with such spontaneous enthusiasm, with such richness of allusion, with such intimate charm that the book will appeal to the general reader as well as to the reader whose especial hobby is collecting.

The following chapter-headings indicate the nature and the scope of the book: Collectors of Yesterday; Tea and Antiquity; Chintz; Pewter; Samplers; Wax Portraits; English Drinking Glasses; Wedgewood; Sevres; Straw Marqueterie. There are some twenty more on equally interesting subjects. This volume is uniform with Dyer's "The Lure of the Antique" and Robie's "By-Paths in Collection." No connoisseur of things artistic can afford to be without it.

ROAMING THROUGH THE WEST INDIES. By Harry A. Franck, author of "A Vagabond Journey Around the World," etc. Royal 8vo, 400 pages. 31 illustrations from photographs. Probable price $5.00

Here are the West Indies.

Mr. Franck has been vagabonding through the West Indies, seeing and feeling and recording the islands in his own extraordinary way. He gets a new people on paper with unerring, unsentimentalized fidelity, and with a vigor, vitality and vividness that is amazing.

Perhaps no other American now writing has Mr. Franck's equipment for achieving the kind of books he writes. For years he has gone about the earth looking at, talking with, working with peoples strange to us—setting them down on paper with a mental and emotional integrity beyond praise. To any new work which he now writes he brings a background of experience of unparalleled value.

But "Roaming Through the West Indies" is more than a travel book. There are in it character-sketches of big or bizarre personalities and places. There are narratives which, while true, have the dramatic tension and thrill of the best short stories. There are descriptive passages having the beauty and passion of poetry of the first class.

And of course wherever Mr. Franck goes his camera goes; and the book is illustrated with the best things in the great collection of photographs he brought back with him.

WE VISIT OLD INNS. By Mary Harrod Northend, author of "Historic Homes of New England," etc. 8vo, 320 pages. 31 illustrations from photographs.

Probable price $4.00

It is unique and delightful.

In this book the author writes on a subject very dear to her, and a subject to which she has given enthusiastic study for years. So what she has written is rich in accurate information and is as full of charm as the old inns with which she deals.

Each old hostelry about which the author writes has a chapter all to itself. This gives a unity of impression to each inn treated, making them stand out individually in the memory. And the book throughout is illustrated with pictures that really complement the text.

The author takes the reader into those ancient American ordinaries where so much of the pioneer social life was spent, tells him the story of when and how each was built, and enriches it with historical allusions. She lets him see its smoke-blackened beams, wide-board floors and its yawning fireplaces. She stimulates his imagination to re-create scenes of early days when the forbears of the best that is American ate and drank and laughed there while the log-fire spouted floods of gold sparks up the black chimney and the wind whistled through the trees outside.

LIFE AND LETTERS OF SIR WILFRED LAURIER. By Oscar Douglas Skelton. Illustrated. Two volumes, royal 8vo, 700 pages.

Probable price $8.00

Mr. Skelton has produced a work marked with the magnetic appeal of the splendid personality with which he deals.

This is the authorized biography of perhaps the greatest statesman Canada has produced and one of the most brilliant and alluring personalities the North American continent can claim. The United States may lay some claim to him not only on the ground of being a part of North America but because between him and this country there was a very strong bond of mutual admiration and friendship.

Mr. Skelton knew the subject of his biography early in Sir Wilfred's career, and he kept in close touch with the great events of the statesman's life to its brilliant close. Mr. Skelton has had full access to the correspondence of Sir Wilfred and the book includes a selection of his self-revealing letters. There are also in the book a number of little-known photographs.

The public life of Sir Wilfred Laurier covered the whole development of Canada since its confederation. He was the last of the statesmen who guided the Dominion through the critical period of its first half-century. He saw Canada transformed from a scattered group of backwoods provinces to a nation taking its full part in the work of the world.

A fitting tribute to a great man.

CONSTANTINE I. AND THE GREEK PEOPLE. By Paxton Hibben. 8vo, 592 pages. Illustrated.

Probable price $3.50

Another now-it-can-be-told book.

What happened in Greece during the war, according to the author, is a disclosure of the unfortunate and bungling political intrigues in the Near East of Entente diplomatists. The book is a graphic account of events there which, through Entente misunderstanding of Balkan problems, kept Greece for three years an unwilling neutral.

In his professional capacity Mr. Hibben visited Venizelos and King Constantine impartially. He analyzes the motives of both leaders in their attitudes toward the Entente; he describes the effect in Greece of the Allied blunders in Gallipoli and of Entente indifference toward the fate of their ally, Serbia. Mr. Hibben maintains that Constantine always favored joining the Greek army to the Allied forces.

EVERYMAN'S CHILD. By Sophie Irene Loeb, President of the Child Welfare Board of New York City. 12mo, 300 pages. Illustrated.

Probable price $2.00

This is a book for any reader with a heart. It is about children—little ones that walk in the darkness of poverty and neglect. Every community has them and you and I and the family in the next street will pay a heavy price if they go wrong. They will go wrong, the majority of them, if they are not understood and helped.

This book is written to assist people to a realization of the necessity for and the means for understanding and helping "Everyman's Child". It is practical; it shows how thousands of children have already been helped. The author as active President of the Child Welfare Board of New York City has already done a splendid work. She offers to others the advantages of the experience she has already won by battle and the benefit of the special study she has had to give to the subject to make her own work successful.

"Everyman's Child" is rich in human appeal. It has an emotional as well as an intellectual side. And all that the author writes is presented with an enthusiasm that is irresistible.

DRIFTING AMONG SOUTH SEA ISLES. By Frederick O'Brien, author of "White Shadows in the South Seas," etc. Royal 8vo, 400 pages. Illustrated from photographs.

Probable price $5.00

It is almost superfluous to say anything more than that this new book is by the author of "White Shadows in the South Seas," and that it is more of the same. Mr. O'Brien confined himself in his first book to the Marquesas Islands. The new book touches, not only the Marquesas Islands, but Tahiti and that long, low archipelago of mystery and beauty in the far South Seas called the Paumota Islands.

Of Mr. O'Brien's method of presenting his travel books, The New York Times says: "In his 'White Shadows in the South Seas' we have an incomparable record of travel. . . . Not even in 'Omoo' and 'Typee' does one open a richer vein of humor, a finer sensitiveness to beauty of island scenery and the strength and simplicity of primitive Indian character. . . . Books of this character, of this downright simplicity, are always scarce. Never were they more needed than now. . . . Readers lose themselves in that new wonder-world of Mr. O'Brien's making."

THE REIGN OF PATTI. By Herman Klein, author of "Thirty Years of Musical Life in London," etc. Over 50 illustrations from photographs. 8vo, 350 pages.

Price $5.00

This is the authorized biography of Adelina Patti, perhaps the world's greatest prima donna and certainly one of the most engaging personalities of the past century. It is a story of her life from the time when as a mere child in New York she astonished her own family and musical scholars from Europe not only by the quality of her voice but by the things she had picked up. The story of her life, which came to an end in 1919, reads like a modern Cinderella fable.

Mr. Klein, a musical critic and scholar of eminent ability, knew Mme. Patti all her life, and followed her triumphant career in detail. He planned, and began collecting material for, a biography of her years ago. Then she agreed to collaborate with him herself in writing her autobiography. Press of other matters prevented the autobiography, but Mr. Klein has had the fullest opportunity to use biographical material in the hands of Mme Patti's family, including letters, little-known photographs, etc. Mr. Klein's work is in every sense authorized. On his side it is a labor of years.

"The Reign of Patti" is a book for every reader interested in music, for every reader interested in a life-story as splendid as a fairy tale, and for every reader who delights to come in contact with one of those thrilling, flaming personalities which we call a genius.

THE NEW WORLD OF SCIENCE: ITS DEVELOPMENT DURING THE WAR. Edited by Robert M. Yerkes of the National Research Council. 8vo, 350 pages. Profusely illustrated. (The first volume in The Century New World Series.)

This is a book for all men and women who want to keep abreast of the times. The war acted as a tremendous stimulant on all branches of Science and forced progress much faster than would have occurred under normal conditions. Everybody would like to know about these great scientific advances, such as the new telephony, improvement in photography, hitherto unheard-of surgical operations and the like. Well, here they are, gathered into one handy volume and each explained by an expert in his line.

There is nothing dry-as-dust about this book. It is up-to-the-minute in every particular and while the information is scientifically accurate, it is put before the reader in such attractive form that he is bound to exclaim, "Truth is stranger than fiction!"

POLITICAL SYSTEMS IN TRANSITION: WAR-TIME AND AFTER. By C. G. Fenwick, Professor of Political Science at Byrn Mawr College. 8vo, 350 pages. (The second volume in The Century New World Series.)

Probable price $3.00

The object of this volume is to trace the changes brought about by the World War in the political institutions of the great nations, and particularly in those of the United States. The fundamental political problem raised by the war was the question of the efficiency of democratic government when faced with the necessity of exerting its full strength against a powerful enemy. How did democratic governments like those of the United States and Great Britain adapt themselves to the demands of war? What weaknesses in their political machinery were discovered under the severe test to which it was subjected? What special difficulties confronted the United States at its entrance into the war by reason of its more rigid form of constitutional government? Were these difficulties as great in the case of a government like that of Great Britain with a centralized Parliament and a responsible Cabinet? To what extent does the experience of the war offer lessons for the present time of reconstruction? Comparisons and contrasts are made, both between democracy and autocracy when at war, and between the older democracies and the new republics that have sprung up in Europe.

THE WORKERS AT WAR. By Frank J. Warne, author of "The Coal Mine Workers," etc. 8vo, 350 pages. (The third volume in The Century New World Series.)

Probable price $3.00

Every citizen of this country has got to be interested in the labor question; and so the potential readers of this book can be numbered by the thousands.

Just what did the war do for labor? Every man hears that it suddenly set forward the unionization of labor twenty years, that it gained in a few years for union labor more power and wages than it had gained in the two decades previous, that union labor now has the public at its mercy and is not inclined to be merciful, that in the inevitable crucial clash between labor and capital the middle class will be reduced to the position of slum-dwellers.

But people want to know the facts. This book gives the facts. The author is an expert on the subject. It has been his specialty for years. He has studied it from every side, and he was provided with the equipment of educational training that enabled him to get at the bottom of the question.

Mr. Warne presents the subject of labor before we entered the war, the changes brought about by the war, and the problems with reference to labor that remain to be solved. His book, as a clear statement of those problems, helps toward their solution.

OCEAN SHIPPING: ELEMENTS OF PRACTICAL STEAMSHIP OPERATION. By Robert Edwards Annin, lecturer on economics at New York University. 8vo, 400 pages. Illustrated. (The first volume in The Century Foreign Trade Series.) Probable price $3.00

This book deals with the fundamentals of ship management and operation. It is a practical guide based on experience and not a theoretical treatise based on maxims. Practically every phase and problem of actual shipping is considered: freight rates, labor problems, the officering and manning of ships, selection of a ship, the fueling, the handling of cargo on the dock and its stowing in the ship, foreign exchange, marine insurance, etc., etc. The Appendix contains copies of important documents which are of constant use to the exporter. Mr. Annin is interesting, authoritative and eminently helpful.

For the would-be investor the book describes in some detail the natural risks of the business as well as the moral hazards inherent in the delegation of operation and management; while the causal reader will find diversion in the narrative of wartime conditions and incidents—physical, financial, and pseudo-political—as well as in the glimpse afforded of the exigencies and problems of the most fascinating of all commercial pursuits.

THE NEW MERCHANT MARINE. By Edward N. Hurley. 8vo, 300 pages. Illustrated. (The second volume in The Century Foreign Trade Series.) Probable price $3.00

In this timely book the former Chairman of the United States Shipping Board anticipates the inevitable difficulties and problems which our merchant marine must ultimately face and offers helpful suggestions for its upbuilding.

The book commences with a brief résumé of our old merchant marine up to the formation of the United States Shipping Board. It then surveys the construction of the Emergency Fleet and studies the work of the Shipping Board and the many other phases of the shipping problem. Finally the prospects of the new merchant marine are discussed as they are seen by the author through present-day conditions.

Few men are so well qualified as is Edward N. Hurley to conduct a comprehensive discussion of this vitally important subject. Before the war Mr. Hurley was Chairman of the U.S. Federal Trade Commission and before that was a United States Trade Commissioner to the Latin-American republics.

PACKING FOR EXPORT. By H. R. Moody. 8vo, 350 pages. Illustrated. (The third volume in The Century Foreign Trade Series.) Probable price $3.00

The importance of what may be called the science and art of packing is revealing itself the more America goes into foreign trade. Packing is the author's specialty. During the war he was in charge of the packing and shipping of government supplies overseas—a tremendous job. His achievements in that work astonished the American shipping men who studied his methods.

Captain Moody treats his subject in a definite, explicit manner. He does not generalize, he gives definite instructions accompanied by charts showing just how and just why certain packing and crating methods should be employed under certain conditions. He discusses the advisability of knock-down shipments, the question of safeguarding goods from thefts, the advantages of various kinds of containers, the materials that should be used, the marking of the packages, etc. It is a book that forward-looking American business men will welcome.

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT: ITS INFLUENCE ON CIVILIZATION. By M. Luckiesh of the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company and author of "Color and Its Applications," etc. 8vo, 350 pages. Illustrated from photographs. (The second volume in the series, The Century Books of Useful Science.) Probable price $2.50

This is an enthusiastic and absorbingly interesting appreciation and explanation of the magical accomplishments of artificial light. In this book, Mr. Luckiesh traces the history of the development of artificial light and describes its influence upon human progress.

It is written especially for the man in the street who is not interested in technical scientific terms and formulae, but who looks with admiration upon the huge signs which flash and sparkle above the crowds on the Great White Way and wants to know more of their origin, who marvels at the colors and brilliance of a spectacular theatrical production and desires to know how they are accomplished, and who takes a natural delight in hearing about scientific discoveries when they are explained in the simple, direct language he understands best. It is a book of wonder.

THE NEW STONE AGE. By H. E. Howe of the National Research Council. 8vo, 400 pages. Profusely illustrated. (The third volume in the series, The Century Books of Useful Science.) Probable price $2.50

A true fairy tale of science.

This is the story of cement and concrete and it is a wonderful story—as full of romantic interest, of surprise and suspense for the general reader as many a good novel. As the author points out, we moderns would find it quite possible to surpass the pyramids of old if there were now any market for pyramids.

"The New Stone Age" is the story of cement and concrete presented from the scientific standpoint but in nontechnical language. The book tells the past history of cement and concrete, discusses the raw materials necessary for the different types, explains their preparation, tells the parts chemistry and other sciences play in cement and concrete, sets forth scientifically exactly what happens when they set and harden, and tells of the various usual and unusual uses of this extraordinary material which modern science has developed to help solve our problems.

The author is a recognized authority, and he writes with the interest-compelling vigor of an enthusiast.

EVERYDAY AMERICANS. By Henry Seidel Canby, author of "College Sons and College Fathers," etc. 12mo, 225 pages. Probable price $1.75

"Everyday Americans" is a study of the American mind as the war has left it. Each chapter is an essay on one aspect of the typical American as an observer with European as well as home experience sees him.

The book is a study of the mind of the plain American, the bourgeois American, the type to which most of us conform, however unwillingly, in our thinking, our prejudices, our ideals, our limitations. This American has been aroused, made self-conscious, and race-conscious by the war. He has become important, tremendously important. His behavior (and his misbehavior) is affecting millions in Europe, and portraying more clearly than ever the quality of his own soul. We all know him, most of us are him, but few of us have tried to think him out, as he stands now, when the world is ready to follow him as a leader—if he can lead.

This book, with its chapters on idealism and conservatism and radicalism, on education, literature, politics, and religion in the American mind, is an attempt to throw some light on the national type we have developed, its problems, its idiosyncrasies, its humors, its possible future.

SOME STRANGE CORNERS OF OUR COUNTRY. (Revised Edition).

By Charles F. Lummis, author of "Pueblo Indian Folk Stories," etc. 32 illustrations from photographs. 12mo, 300 pages. Probable price $2.00

A new edition of a classic.

This is a revised edition of one of the most popular, and deservedly popular, books of travel on our country that has been published in the last twenty-five years. It deals especially with out-of-the-way and extremely interesting places and peoples in our comparatively little known Southwest. Mr. Lummis knows the Southwest with the intimacy of one who has spent years in studying it at first hand, and he writes about it with a quaint irresistible charm as well as with the authority of an expert.

This revised edition of "Some Strange Corners of Our Country" has been edited by the author, new illustrations from photographs taken by him have been substituted for the original wood-cuts, and new material has been added. The book is printed from entirely new plates.

THE SECRET OF EVERYDAY THINGS. By Jean-Henri Fabre, author of "The Story-Book of Science," etc. Translated from the French by Florence Constance Bicknell. 8vo, 350 pages. Illustrated.

Probable price $2.50

The announcement of a new book in America by the famous French scientist and humanist is a literary event of the first class; and this is the kind of book that he liked most to write and the kind that is running into many editions in France to meet the demand of the thousands to whom he has endeared himself.

"The Secret of Everyday Things" has all manner of quaint and curious information in it, and it is all presented in that marvelous style that makes the story of thread or needles or tea or glass as fascinating as fiction. Fabre tells also about flax, hemp, fire, matches, coal, bread, rain, snow, and many other things with which we come in contact so often that we forget how tremendously important they are.

And of course all that the great scientist writes is accurate in the extreme.

"The Secret of Everyday Things," like many of Fabre's books, is simple enough for any child to understand and significant enough to interest any adult reader.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SEA-LARK. By Ralph Henry Barbour and H. P. Holt, authors of "Lost Island," etc. 12mo, 320 pages. Illustrated.

Probable price $1.75

Once again these popular authors have written a tale that will be received with a shout of approval by young America. Mr. Barbour is inimitable in his knowledge of boys and their ways and Mr. Holt ably abets him in compounding stories that grip the heart and stir the pulse.

"The Mystery of the Sea-Lark" concerns the efforts of young Jack Holden to help his father who has been forced to sell his home and become a bookkeeper in order to repay his suspicious partner, Simon Barker, a sum of money that had been stolen from him during a storm. Jack secures possession of a dismantled sloop, the "Sea-Lark," and fits her up for use as a ferry across the harbor. With him in the enterprise are his chum, George Santo, and Rodney Farnham, to whose father the sloop formerly belonged.

Two mysterious strangers seek to buy or rent the sloop, and, failing, make frequent trips in her. Simon Barker's schooner is rescued by the "Sea-Lark" and towed to port, but the owner refuses to pay the salvage agreed on, five hundred dollars. Jack takes his case to a lawyer and while sleeping alone in the sloop is attacked at night, but his assailant escapes unrecognized. The mysterious strangers hire the sloop for an outing and when well offshore seize her and set the boys adrift.

A MAYFLOWER MAID. By Alden A. and Emilie B. Knipe, authors of "Beatrice of Denewood," etc. 12mo, 400 pages. Illustrated.
Probable price $1.90

The only Knipe book for 1920.

A fascinating narrative of a girl's adventures on board the Mayflower and among the hardy settlers who landed at Plymouth Rock. It is historically accurate, and is especially timely in view of the tercentenary celebration of the landing of the Pilgrims in America.

Barbara Gorges is a timid, motherless Puritan girl who sets out from England with her father on what is to her the terrifying voyage to the mysterious new world—America. She cannot help believing the monstrous tales that are circulated about the new land. Nevertheless her father, a stern and unbending member of the Puritan band, insists that she accompany him, and it is only in Myles Standish that she finds a spark of courage to face the fearful journey. The captain of the vessel is a coward and he turns the ship back to England. There Barbara loses her father and after a series of adventures finds herself aboard the "Mayflower" bound for the new country.

Arrived in America, the settlers come very near starving. In these trying times Barbara develops into a brave, resourceful girl, and she becomes a veritable heroine among the first Puritan settlers in America. She is intimate with Rose Standish, who shortly after the landing, succumbs to the rigors of the bitter climate. Thereafter Myles Standish takes it upon himself to guard Barbara and thus in his confidence she learns and sees much of his negotiations with the natives. Barbara knows, also, why John Alden was sent to Priscilla Molins in behalf of Myles Standish and knows, too, why that gay soldier grieved not at all at the outcome of that courtship.

REDDY BRANT: HIS ADVENTURES. By W. C. Tuttle. 12mo, 320 pages. Illustrated.
Probable price $1.75

A series of clever, lively stories all of which center about the appealing figure of fourteen-year-old Reddy Brant, orphan and vagrant.

The atmosphere rings true and Reddy's various escapades as related by the sheriff of Lemhi and Jim Burns, owner of the XL outfit, are all experiences in the career of the venturesome, excitement-loving youngster who has wandered into the cow country.

The author has a keen sense of humor that makes his work very popular with young America. This latest book is no exception, and those boys who are fortunate enough to make Reddy's acquaintance will have many a good chuckle over the hero's exciting adventures. And Reddy Brant is well worth knowing.

THE BOYS' BOOK OF MODEL BOATS. By Raymond F. Yates. 12mo, 300 pages. Over 100 illustrations. Probable price $2.00

A bewitching book for a boy—and that is no exaggeration. It tells how to make all kinds of small boats—boats to be run by electricity, by rubber bands, by all sorts of power. The author is not only an expert on his subject, he is an enthusiast; and he writes with a fervor that is irresistible.

Mr. Yates tells how to build these little water-craft, and he shows by illustration the chief points of construction. There are over one hundred line-drawings in the book.

Once America was a great shipping nation with its flag in every port. Then the Stars and Stripes almost disappeared from the seas. The war forced us to begin building ships again. It is books such as this of Mr. Yates's that will help us to take back our old position in the merchant marine, by encouraging a knowledge of and a love for ships in the boys of America.

THE BLUE PEARL. By Samuel Scoville, Jr., author of "Boy Scouts in the Wilderness," etc. 12mo, 320 pages. Illustrated. Probable price $1.75

A story of adventure for boys.

This is another story with its setting in the woods of the great Northwest. Again a group of Boy Scouts are challenged to overcome obstacles and meet the most extraordinary dangers, this time the prize being a marvelous blue pearl worth $50,000. The challenge is accepted, and the narrative of the Scouts threading the primeval forests on the trail of the blue pearl makes a story of extraordinary interest.

Jim Donegan, the lumber king, has a wonderful collection of gems. He tells the Scouts that a blue pearl the size of a certain pink pearl which he owns would be worth $50,000, and that he would be glad to pay that sum for such a pearl. Joe Couteau, an Indian boy, tells him of a strange island he once visited with his uncle, medicine-man of his tribe. His uncle found a great blue pearl in a stream there and Joe is sure he can find his way back to his tribe and the island. The lumber king agrees to finance the trip, and Joe and his friend Will Bright, together with old Jud Adams, a trapper, and Freddie Perkins, a schoolboy athlete, start off on the hazardous journey.

The "Argonauts," as they style themselves, cross the continent and after many hair-raising adventures reach the island. There they encounter hostile tribes and it is only by superb courage and pertinacity that they finally overcome all obstacles and win the Blue Pearl.

One of the most exciting, yet informative, stories that have appeared in a long, long while.

TREASURE MOUNTAIN. By Edna Turpin. 12mo, 288 pages. Illustrated. Probable price $1.75

It is hard to imagine the girl who would not enjoy this exciting, rapidly moving tale of life among the mountain whites of Virginia.

Page Ruffin, the fifteen-year-old heroine, is camping with a party of friends on the shores of a mountain lake. She is saved from danger by a youngster whose family lives in the vicinity. He tells Page of a legend among the mountain whites that a certain cave not far away contains treasure that is guarded by the ghost of a man who was killed while seeking it. Nothing daunted, Page persuades the young mountaineer to lead her and two friends to this cave. They enter and—but what follows is too thrilling to be told by anyone but the author. She is a born story-teller and her long acquaintance with the mountain whites gives her ability to portray the local color with vividness and accuracy. In addition she has built up a plot that for surprising turns and unexpected twists would be hard to beat.

We recommend this book unreservedly to all girls—and boys, too, for that matter—who like a real story with plenty of action and an ingenious ending.

US AND THE BOTTLE-MAN. By Edith Ballinger Price, author of "Blue Magic," etc. 12mo, 160 pages. Illustrated by the author. Probable price $1.50

This is a story with a setting by the sea, with a refreshing, original plot, and full of whimsical humor. It is beautifully done.

There were two boys and a girl at the seashore for the summer, and one day they pretended they were marooned on a desert island. They wrote a message calling for help, put it in a bottle and dropped it into the ocean.

But the ocean is a surprising old body of water. You never can tell what it is going to bring about. Presently the three who were, in their imagination, marooned on the desert island, began receiving messages in answer to their appeal. They came from an unknown they called The Bottle-Man.

There follows a rapid-fire correspondence, and real events begin moving so fast and become so complicated that a tragedy threatens and is averted only by the wonderful Bottle-Man.

JIMMY BUNN STORIES. By Henry C. Walker. Square 12mo, 200 pages. Illustrated. Probable price $1.75

For reading just before bed-time these stories are ideal. Just the sort of stories that little folk adore. Jimmy Bunn, the rabbit, is the central character, and the present-day fables and folk-lore tales in which he takes part are told with such charm and originality that any child could listen to them by the hour. They are full of fun and humor that appeal to the healthy normal youngster, and they frequently point a moral in such kindly fashion that small ears take it in with no effort.

We venture to predict that any little boy or girl who hears one will begin like Oliver Twist to beg for more. It is no easy thing to write for children. Mr. Walker has found the way to hold their interest while imparting much interesting information.

AT THE SIGN OF THE TWO HEROES. By Adair Alden. 12mo, 320 pages. Illustrated. Probable price $1.75

An adventurous, entertaining story with a well constructed plot that is warranted to hold the attention of any red-blooded youngster to the last word.

This popular author has never done a better piece of work. The boys are real boys and the characterization of the "down East" conservative community is very clever.

Patricia Meade is the seventeen-year-old daughter of Captain Meade, lately returned from a German prison-camp. She accompanies her father to a hotel where they stay for three months while he is engaged on a secret mission. Patricia innocently allows a paper, "The Crimson Patch," to be taken from her father, and he departs alone on the trail of the thief. Patricia enlists the aid of a keen-witted bell-boy and together they plan to solve the mystery themselves and regain possession of the valuable document.

There is a puzzling waiter who turns out to be a friend in disguise, a Belgian girl who is used as a catspaw by an unscrupulous German aunt, and other elements that go to make up a thrilling tale of spies, danger, and secret conspiracies. Altogether it is one of the best stories that this popular writer has ever penned.

SILVER SHOAL LIGHT. By Edith Ballinger Price, author of "Blue Magic," etc. 12mo, 250 pages. Illustrated by the author. Probable price $1.75

Joan, a charming city-bred girl, piqued at her lover for his overwhelming interest in child welfare, decided on impulse to leave town for a season and go to a little village on the New England Coast. Upon her arrival late in the afternoon she could find no accommodations and finally in despair appealed to an old sea-captain. After further fruitless inquiries he rowed her out to the neighboring lighthouse where she was received with open arms by an interesting family. This consisted of "Fogger," keeper of the Light and aspirant for the U. S. Navy; "Mudder," and their young son, Garth, a child of boundless imagination.

How Joan gradually dropped her stiff town attitude and adopted the free, happy life of the lighthouse, how she came to love and cherish the appealing little Garth, and how she outwitted a German spy and saved a transport loaded with Uncle Sam's boys from destruction, form the basis of a tale that will delight young and old alike.

The author is a born story-teller. She has so filled her plot with adventurous incident and poetic feeling that there is not a dull page in the book, and it all ends just as the reader would have it end.

SAYS OF

WHITE SHADOWS IN THE SOUTH SEAS

By FREDERICK O'BRIEN

"NEVER have I read a book in any language or translation that fascinated me more than Frederick O'Brien's 'White Shadows in the South Seas'.

"Aside from its value as a description of an Eden that is rapidly becoming a Paradise Lost, it is full of thrill, humor, humanity, wisdom and strange beauty.

"Many of its chapters, though devoted to real characters or events, would take their places high among the masterpieces of the short story if they were offered as fiction.

"The book seems to me possessed of a literary quality superior even to W. H. Hudson's works, and of a construction much defter. In short, I do not hesitate to call it one of the greatest of the great books".

KEEPING YOUNG MADE EASY. 12mo, Cloth, Net, $1.25

Good health is, surely, the normal condition of humanity, and a reverse condition indicates that either our ancestors or ourselves have not lived under the most healthful conditions. The author shows how, having once entered on the right system of hygienic living, the road is always found pleasant and easy and requires but little thought to maintain the proper standard of health.

By GRACE M. BROWN

MENTAL HARMONY: Its Influence on Life. 12mo, Cloth, Net, $1.25

The man who knows how to govern his life from the inner forces, rather than be subject to outer conditions, will maintain a natural poise that will hold him immune from most of the worries and perplexities that would ordinarily confront him.

MENTAL HARMONY is a great factor in creating for the body a reserve force that will help it withstand the drains of everyday life.

By EMILY ROSE BURT

ENTERTAINING MADE EASY. 12mo, Cloth, Net, $1.25

This book makes entertaining easy by suggesting plans that are simple, but a little out of the ordinary, to fit the most frequent occasions that arise. Don't miss the fun of entertaining because you've always thought it difficult! The author shows you how easily it can be done.

By ALEXANDER BURTON

PUBLIC SPEAKING MADE EASY. Cloth, $1.25

Everyone, without exception, has an ambition to be able to speak in public. It starts in school and follows one through life. Most of us think it about the hardest thing in the world to do; as a matter of fact, it is much easier than many of the other accomplishments that we acquire.

SPANISH: A Practical Hand Book for Self-Instruction. Cloth, $1.50

The advantages that result from a knowledge of Spanish are generally appreciated, and they grow more important day by day.

The present method of instruction has sought to combine clearness and directness with completeness. There is great diversity among Spaniards in matters of pronunciation. The teaching in this volume has been limited strictly to essentials, and non-essentials have been omitted in every instance. The result is that the student will be able to acquire a ccrrect pronunciation, without wasting time over debatable trifles.

TORCHY AS A PA. 12mo, Cloth, Net, $1.90

Torchy, the youth with more intimate friends than any other in America. Have you ever tried to discover why Torchy is the most popular hero in American fiction? To say that he is the best beloved is merely another way of putting it. His rich, crisp humor, his cheery audacity, his sheer joy in meeting life's inevitable trouble—these help, of course, because they make him more interesting; but the real reason is his unselfish, whole-souled kindliness, and his entire competence in finding out the right thing to do and doing it. The combination of nobility of soul, hair-trigger intelligence and an unplumbed sense of humor is rare in this world. These things made TORCHY really great.

With two characters, Shorty McCabe and Torchy, with which he has alternated through a long series of sketches, Sewell Ford has won the distinction of being regarded as Mark Twain's legitimate successor as chief of American humorists. "EASY STUDY" SERIES

THERE is an old saying to the effect that easy writing makes hard reading. The meaning is simply that what gushes most fluently from an author's pen is likely to be, in the main, just nonsense. There are, of course, exceptions, but they are mighty rare. Maybe authors are, on occasion, actually inspired. As a rule, however, the writer claiming inspiration must be regarded with grave suspicion. Genius is an infinite capacity for taking pains, and the truth is illustrated especially in the art of writing. Many a fool can write a gibberish that will defy the intelligence of any reader, since there is no sense in it. Indeed, even a master of knowledge may lack almost wholly the art of interpreting his learning to others through the medium of the written word.

All this bears vitally on the worth of any manual for self-instruction. The student may be victimized by a teacher who, though sufficiently informed and honest in his effort, lacks, nevertheless, the ability to set down information in such simple, comprehensive, illuminating phrases as shall most readily render them available to the understanding of the reader.

The ancient proverb might well have as corollary: Hard writing makes easy reading.

The greater pains the teacher takes, the easier the pupil's task. This principle has guided throughout the preparation of the "Easy Study Series." The careful and skilled efforts of the instructor in each case have done the utmost possible toward lightening the labors of the pupil. The exposition of each subject is made with simplicity and directness, in a manner both adroit and comprehensive. The student will find each volume not only adapted to his needs as to the information offered, but also agreeable in reading, satisfying in study.

"HOW TO DEVELOP" SERIES

Trade Mark Registered

"HEAVEN helps those who help themselves." . . It is one of the oldest of old, old sayings.

The greatest of teachers said:

"The kingdom of heaven is within you."

Put these truths together, and from the teaching take counsel of wisdom. The spiritual force that is back of all life and throughout all the energies of life is freely ours to use in every undertaking. And that force is within us. It springs in the heart, blossoms in the brain, has its fruits in the work we do. Each of us has a capacity for achievement. The possible development of power is limitless.

In India, through thousands of years, the law of caste has prevailed. The child is born street-sweeper, warrior or priest, and he must live his life out in his caste under the ghastly terrorism of religion. The creed of the West contradicts this creed of the East. We believe that each person should develop himself as swiftly and as fully as he may. By such development he does much for himself, he does much for the world.

But out of this very fact comes keen competition. The laggards, the shirkers, the incompetents, the whiners, must be left behind in a progress where merit is the measure of true success. He who would win much from the world must give much. And, first, he must have much to give.

The volumes on "how to develop" have, in each instance, been written by those competent to the task in both experience and understanding, and also in the ability to interpret what they have learned so that the reader may take full profit from their wisdom.

The volumes now ready, or in the course of preparation—

HOW TO DEVELOP YOUR PERSONALITY
HOW TO DEVELOP YOUR WILL POWER
HOW TO DEVELOP YOUR SPEAKING VOICE

Further titles will be added as opportunity presents itself to secure the proper type of manuscript.

THE "MADE EASY" SERIES

Trade Mark Registered

THERE is no royal road to learning.

It is an old saying, and a true one, in a sense: for prince and peasant must alike travel the path.

Yet, there are many paths, and great differences among them, as they lead to the temple of knowledge. In some, the going is easy, in some, hard. In some, the journeying is pleasant and profitable: in some, toilsome—a weary scramble over many stumbling blocks.

The builder of the road is the teacher. It is his task to smooth the way, and to make it straight: or to leave it all cluttered, a twisted, haphazard course, that runs roughly and reaches nowhere.

In the "Made Easy" Series, it has been the publisher's purpose to provide for the student the best possible road to learning—a road truly royal in its simplicity, its worth: a road wide and direct, and free from foolish, needless litter.

The various writers of the books in the series have been chosen for their special fitness. Such fitness includes, in the first place, mastery of the particular subject: in the second place, ability to interpret knowledge to others.

Right teaching makes easy learning. Few subjects are really hard to learn, when properly set before the pupil. These volumes are the product of a painstaking care to simplify every detail of instruction, yet to make it complete. The result for the student, is, indeed, a learning made easy, yet none the less exact, thorough, wholly adequate for his needs.

Cosmopolitan Publications

AUTUMN OF 1920

From a drawing by Dean Cornwell for the jacket of James Oliver Curwood's "The Valley of Silent Men"

Cosmopolitan Book Corporation

Publishers

119 West 40th Street, New York

WHY COSMOPOLITAN BOOKS ARE BEST SELLERS

JUST because a novel is a "good book" does not necessarily mean that it is a good seller. A book may still be good and yet be of the stationary variety as to sales. On the other hand, books that are not good often sell until the public learns better. Then they become "plugs."

The problem is to make good books sell consistently. This is a simple matter, the Cosmopolitan way.

We publish few titles. Cosmopolitan Books are selected for the reading public from the output of the greatest writers in the world by the greatest editors of the greatest publishing organization in America.

Then, we believe so thoroughly in our authors and in their products that we back them with an amount of advertising that would frighten the average publisher to contemplate.

Take James Oliver Curwood's "The River's End" as an example. It was published in October, 1919. An advertising campaign, planned in detail long before the novel was published, was carried out. The copy appeared in leading newspapers from coast to coast and in magazines of national circulation. Result: "The River's End" was not only a best seller for one or two months, but has been well up in the list of best sellers for eight months (at the time of this writing) and the demand is undiminished.

There is every indication that "The Valley of Silent Men" (Autumn 1920), the second volume in Mr. Curwood's great trilogy of the Three River Country, will sell beyond the 200,000 mark. An advertising campaign, even more extensive than that for "The River's End," is now ready for release.

Speaking of good books and good advertising: the copy used to exploit Peter B. Kyne's "Kindred of the Dust" has been heralded as the most unusual and effective copy for book advertising ever published. You have seen the advertising; you are familiar with the sale of the novel.

The point we wish to emphasize is that we do not think our work is done when we sell our books to the book-seller. We believe it is our duty to help the book-seller in turn sell Cosmopolitan books to the ultimate consumer, the book-buyer.

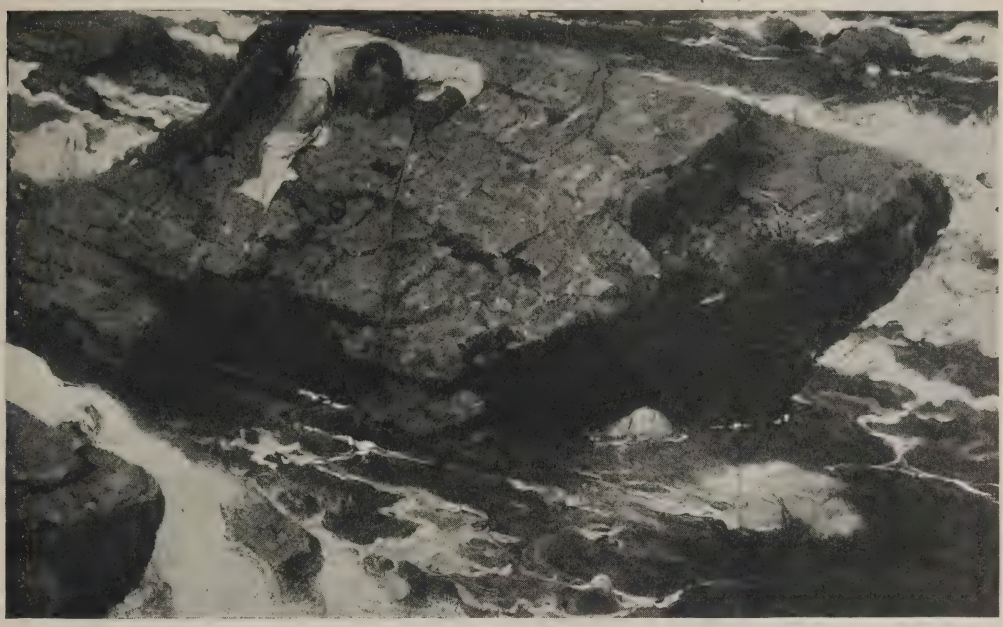
Addenda

THE present sensation in the field of advertising is the American Weekly Magazine. This magazine, with a circulation of 2,500,000, larger than any other publication in America, is printed in three colors and black and appears as the principal feature of the New York American, Chicago Herald & Examiner, Boston Advertiser, Washington Times, Atlanta Georgian-American, Milwaukee Wisconsin, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner.

So extraordinary is its pulling power and productiveness as an advertising medium and so great the demand for its limited space that advertisers must contract for reservations months in advance. And the cost of one page is $8,000.00.

By acting early in the year, we secured a page in the American Weekly for Sunday, November 28th. This is the Sunday following Thanksgiving, just when the big retail business begins. Think of it! A full page—newspaper size. Printed in three colors and black. All devoted to advertising the Cosmopolitan Books which are listed in this Announcement. Reaching two and a half million of the more progressive and well-to-do families of the United States, the kind of people who can afford to buy and do buy good books. That's dealer co-operation. That's why Cosmopolitan Books are best sellers.

A New Curwood Novel That Beats "The River's End"



The Valley of Silent Men

By James Oliver Curwood

Illustrated by Dean Cornwell

WHEN he thought he was dying, Sergeant Kent, of the Royal Mounted, told a story that branded him as a murderer and set another man free.

But the doctor's diagnosis was wrong; death by hanging grinned in the trooper's face. Love of life and of a beautiful girl who had laughed at him and called him a liar now made him a fugitive—a hunter became the hunted.

With him, down those fabled rivers flowing North to the frozen Arctic, sped the girl, whose own secret winds like a thread of wild magic to the hidden Valley of Silent Men.

A story as good as "The River's End" would have to be some story. But "The Valley of Silent Men" is even better—even bigger. In it is love, mystery, adventure, romance—desperate fights, life, death, real men and women.

Mr. Curwood portrays great souls, and strong, who wage their battles of life and love in the open spaces, the great out-of-doors, God's Country, no less. No wonder Mr. Curwood has such a large and loyal following. No wonder that more than 1,500,000 copies of his novels have been sold.

The Cosmopolitan Book Corporation's country-wide advertising will be back of this notable book. It is safe to say that "The Valley of Silent Men" is destined to be the big seller of 1920.

BRITE and FAIR

By Judge Henry A. Shute

THE WRITER who can portray boyhood as it really is instead of as a grown-up imagines it is—or was—is a rare soul. Mark Twain, Booth Tarkington and Judge Henry A. Shute are the three authors in whom the spirit of boyhood refused to die, or even change as they grew up. That's why Huck Finn, Penrod Schofield and Plupy Shute are so real and human. They personify boyhood immortal.

Millions have laughed till the tears came over "The Real Diary of a Real Boy." It is an unusual story that outlives its generation. Yet, "The Real Diary of a Real Boy," published more than fifteen years ago, is still selling at the rate of twenty thousand copies a year.

Now Judge Shute has been persuaded to publish the funniest parts of Plupy's diary—"the things they didn't dass print" in the previous volumes. That indicates how rich and delightful is the humor of "Brite and Fair." The laughingest book of many a day.

Worth Brehm has made the drawings for "Brite and Fair." If there is an artist who can picture real boys better than this same Worth Brehm, we do not know of him. A book of true humor.

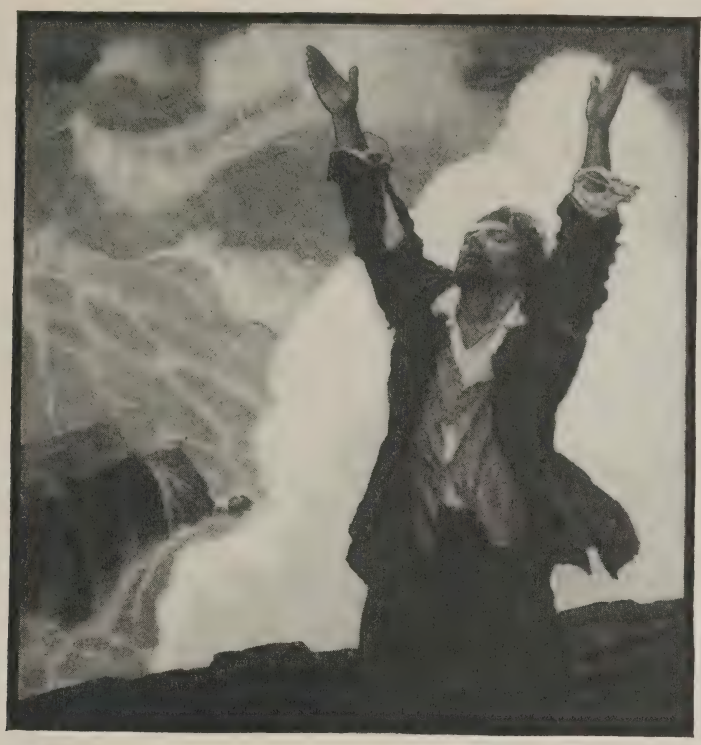
Wyeth's "Robinson Crusoe," the Gift Book of the Year



ROBINSON CRUSOE

DANIEL DEFOE

Preface and Illustrations by N. C. Wyeth

FIRST published in 1719, "Robinson Crusoe," the oldest adventure story in the English language, still reigns supreme as the story of adventure. And for having written this brave and inspired tale, Daniel Defoe stands unsurpassed among the great romancers of the ages.

In planning the present edition of "Robinson Crusoe" the publishers enlisted the enthusiastic aid of Mr. N. C. Wyeth, who has made sixteen original paintings which have been faithfully reproduced in the book. "Robinson Crusoe" is just the sort of story to inspire an artist of Mr. Wyeth's attainments to his highest endeavor and in this volume is represented some of the finest work of his distinguished career. The illustrations are superb in color, atmosphere, technique and brilliance of execution.

"Robinson Crusoe" is always popular—and always sells. This exceptionally beautiful Wyeth edition should easily be the leading gift book of the year.

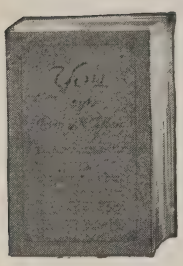
Y O U

By Irving R. Allen



So great within each individual are his possibilities for development that could he draw back the curtain of the future, he would be amazed at the brilliance and promise of his own potential self. But to reach the goal he must find the way.

If a man, with a hurry call to San Francisco, were to start walking from New York, what would you think of him? The man who starts through life with no knowledge of the law that brings him to the things he seeks, is putting himself in the same position.

But what is this law that quickly, rapidly and surely will bring You to your own? It can be found in "You" by Irving R. Allen.

At last a book that does not stop at "you can" but shows you HOW. It offers no vague hints, but lays down definite rules.

"You" is an "arrived" business man's simple, workable formula for winning power, success and happiness,—the best self-help book published is our sincere belief.

A Story Which Proves Peter Kyne a Master of His Art

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By Peter B. Kyne

Published in the Late Spring, This Novel Is Sweeping Into the Fall Season as One of the Best Sellers of the Year. Illustrated by Dean Cornwell.

Characters That Will Live Forever

A novel of the sort of people who grow only in the great Northwest is "Kindred of the Dust," the soul-searching story of Nan of the Sawdust Pile, mother of a child who cries for a father he will never know

—of Donald McKaye, the young laird of Tyee, who is torn between the love he has for Nan and the love he bears his father —of the Old Laird, the proud ruler of his rich little principality, who loves his son with such a fierce and hungry love that he would sooner see him dead than married to Nan.

A Story You Will Never Forget

It is a novel with a problem as old as time itself and as new as the day that dawns with the coming of the new sun—as elemental as man, as great as humanity.

A Writer Who Knows Humanity

He's a wonderfully fine fellow, this Peter B. Kyne, an upstanding, two-fisted American. As one of his admirers once said, "He writes about men, for men—that's why women love his stories."

Five million readers enthused over "Kindred of the Dust" as a Cosmopolitan serial. It was welcome news that they could buy it as a book and buy it they did and they still are buying it—because it is that wholesome kind of American novel which deserves a permanent place on American bookshelves. And the innumerable lovers of good fiction who missed the serial publication have shown how much they prize a good story well told, by the demand that has kept "Kindred of the Dust" selling faster than the presses could turn copies out.

The Big Show By Elsie Janis

FED upon war books, are you? What you mean is that you are "fed up" on books about war. Here is a joy book, the joy book of the war. If you like Elsie Janis on the stage—and you do—you can't help enjoying her book.

" 'The Big Show' is as intimate as a diary, as illuminating as an electric torch," writes Frank J. Price in the "Morning Telegraph."

"Historians of the war devote most of their time to battles. Miss Janis devotes all of her time to the 'boys'; to the historian men are pawns, to Miss Janis they are playmates," declares Mr. Price.

There isn't a better book that could be given to a "doughboy" and none that he would like better than Elsie Janis' "Big Show."

A Minstrel in France By Harry Lauder

IF THE true beauty, the sincerity and depth of feeling expressed by Harry Lauder in his book only were made known to his thousands of admirers, we could not print enough copies of "A Minstrel in France" to supply the demand. The book is Harry Lauder himself and should any one doubt his ability to write let him read this personal record and earn why Harry Lauder's laugh now has a tear in it.

It was only a little while after Harry Lauder had been notified that his only son, Captain John Lauder, had been killed in action, that he had to hide his grief. He was in France as an entertainer. His party came upon the Highlanders.

"Come on, Harry—gie us a song," they shouted. "Let's have 'Roamin' in the Gloamin', Harry! Gie us the Bonnie Lassie! We ha' na' heard 'The Laddies Who Fought and Won,' Harry."

With his poor heart torn he sang and all unknowing they cried, "Make us laugh again, Harry."

"A Minstrel in France" is a book worth boosting.

A "Best Seller" That Seems Destined to Sell Forever

Reproduced from one of Dean Cornwell's wonderful illustrations for The River's End

The River's End

By James Oliver Curwood

We were about to write that the success of this great story is now history. But history is of the past and "The River's End" is of the present. Its continued demand over a period now nearing a year is phenomenal.

To praise the story as a story or to tell of Mr. Curwood's great art, in this, the first volume in his great trilogy of the Three River Country, is not at all necessary. But we think it interesting to quote the words of a prophetic critic, Mr. Grant M. Overton. Said Mr. Overton in the New York Sun on October 5, 1919:

"The River's End is a test of what can be done to sell a book up to the hilt, of what can be done to get a 100 per cent sale. By a 100 per cent sale is meant a sale that stops only when a copy is in the hands of every person who will like that book.

"James Oliver Curwood has written much more than a story. It's a drama. It can be acted. Of course it will be for the movies. It makes an ideal book ... to be read at a single sitting."

Mr. Overton showed great foresight. "The River's End" as a popular selling novel has borne out his prophecy. As a motion picture it has broken attendance records, It is being made into a play for the spoken stage. "The River's End" as a book will have life and interest for a long time to come.

The Abolishing of Death

BY BASIL KING

Cover Design
by F. X. Lyendecker

THIS truly amazing book came to be written in a most astonishing way. In the beginning Basil King explains:

The interest in psychic phenomena which has been specially in evidence during the past three or four years, is generally attributed to the desire of the thousands of bereaved to communicate with their sons, husbands, and brothers violently hurled into other phases of existence. This, as far as it goes, is undoubtedly correct; and yet, the true impulse lies deeper down—so deep that probably only those accustomed to analyze human emotions have been aware of it.

It proceeds, I think, from a wave of intense dissatisfaction with this present world. If there is a better world, we want to be assured of it, and to be assured of it quickly. Much that we confidently trusted to is giving way. It is not giving way in one place alone, but everywhere.

Is the world reaching a new understanding of death—one to which we can better adjust the increasing evidence that our dead can communicate with us? Read what Basil King has set down and draw your own conclusion.

UNEASY STREET

By Arthur Somers Roche

This story is New York from Fortieth to Fifty-ninth Street—its extravagance, its luxury, its love of money to spend. New Year's Eve in jazz cafes, tea in its luxurious hotels—its homes, its bachelor apartments, its old families, its ex-gamblers, its millionaires, its girls.

Uneasy Street

The city's glamor; its urge; the romance that lies around the corner; the spark that flies from the eyes of a girl to the eyes of a man; mystery, danger, intrigue!

Arthur Somers Roche

has put this all in his novel. Wall Street, where money is made; Fifth Avenue and Broadway, where the money is spent; the classes and the masses; the mushroom millionaire and the scion of inherited wealth; the light-hearted girl of the Rialto and the fashionable maid of Park Avenue. You will find them all in which will keep you up until dawn and make you think on the morrow. Arthur Somers Roche wrote it and he knows New York.

Or Home with the Heroes

WHEN Joan and Valerie had ended their term of service with the Trusty Twenty, following the signing of the Armistice, they were ordered back home. They hoped to make a quick and safe voyage with the heroes, many of whom had been wounded. The Khaki Girls were to help care for them on the transport. But, almost from the very first, a mystery involved the two girls. They had seen, in Paris, a wonderfully pretty but strange girl, who seemed entangled in the meshes that had ensnared the Crossroads Princess, and when this same girl was noticed aboard the transport there were vague suspicions. How the secret of the sealed packet was solved, and how, after anxious days aboard a derelict following the disablement of the transport, the girls were finally led to know the truth about Mary Blake, forms an absorbing tale.

INTERNATIONAL ENCYCLOPÆDIA. THE NEW. Edited by FRANK MOORE COLBY, M.A., and TALCOTT WILLIAMS, LL.D., L.H.D., Litt.D. Assisted by nearly 500 editors and contributors.

The new Second Edition now ready contains all the excellent features which at once made the first edition a Standard Authority in libraries and educational institutions throughout the country. To gain quick and reliable information regarding the work, there is no better way than to ask the librarian of your public library. He will tell you that while the first edition was more widely used than any other reference work, the Second Edition is in still greater demand. This edition is much more than a mere revision. It is practically a new work, for every article has been critically examined and enlarged when necessary or replaced by an entirely new article. The whole work has been reset from first to last, the page made somewhat larger, the number of volumes increased from 21 to 24 (including the Courses of Reading and Study) and printed from new plates on thin paper—not too thin, but making the volume easy to handle and to leaf, and although twenty per cent. of material has been added, the shelf-space occupied has been much reduced. The work contains about 80,000 articles (30,000 more than any other encyclopædia); there are 100 full-page color plates, 250 half-tone photographic reproductions, 450 duotints, making in all about 7,500 separate illustrations, besides about 20,000 text-cuts, charts and diagrams. The work is brought down to date, and thus covers the new knowledge in which the past decade has been so fruitful. It also includes a 75-page article on the "War in Europe." Sold by subscription only. For particulars address our Subscription Department.

INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK, THE NEW.
A compendium of the world's progress in every department of human knowledge A special volume published in May of each year, beginning with 1907. For full particulars address Subscription Department.

NORTHCLIFFE: BRITAIN'S MAN OF POWER

"There is not one page in "Northcliffe: Britain's Man of Power" that is not in one sense or another a valuable contribution to the history of our time.

"Mr. Carson has done his work well. His book will remain a notable one. So far Lord Northcliffe stands alone. His broad vision of journalism, his bold daring, his phenomenal keenness, combined with an intelligent respect for standards and enlightened patriotism, make of him a unique personality in which may be found the very triumph of individualism."—The Public Ledger, Philadelphia.

COMPLETE WORKS

Just Then Something Happened! A story for Children. Cloth, $1.50 Net

"It is a sort of Baron Munchausen, Sinbad the Sailor and Alice in Wonderland all rolled together. The youngster who likes invention, thrilling situations, unlooked-for ways of escape and a delicious foolishness as a background for it all, will find them here a-plenty. Mr. Cooke's inventiveness is only equalled by his humor and wit. From the juvenile point of view, he is a crackajack of a story-teller."

The Story Club. Stories for Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

There are no less than forty-four bright, new, interesting stories for children within the covers of this book. Any child of six years to sixteen will understand and enjoy them. "The Vinegator," "The Gassowary," "The Cave of the Eatercow," "The Little, Lame Angel," are some of the titles. The book is fully illustrated in colors.

Told to the Little Tot. Stories for Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

Here is a book of stories for the little folks, beautifully illustrated by Bessie Collins Pease. "The best written of all the books for quite small children," says the The Los Angeles Times, and parents who think enough of their children to give them real books of well-told stories, amusing and adapted to their infant minds, will want to know this book.

Chronicles of the Little Tot. Poems about Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

Edward Howard Griggs and other eminent critics hailed this volume as being equal to the child poems of Stevenson, Riley and Field, and the New York American added, "There is a spontaneity to the humor, a touching realism to the pathos and a pervasive beauty in the sentiments, that raise this collection of Mr. Cooke's verses to heights seldom attained, even by the poets referred to."

I Rule the House. Poems about Children. Cloth, $1.50 Net

Of this second book of child verse, it is enough to say that it fully equals "Chronicles of the Little Tot" in its content. "The Sin of the Coppenter Man," "The Conqueror," "When Comp'ny Comes," "The Little Boy Snake," "The Monkey Man," "The Cooky Moon," "The Geographic Child" are a few of the poems of this book which are known and loved wherever there are children.

COOKE—(Continued)

Impertinent Poems. Poems Men Like.
Cloth, $1.75 Net

"Impertinent Poems" with their keen insight into human nature, their colloquial habit of speech, their ingenious metricism and their whimsical sympathy established a new school of verse-making. Contains "How Did You Die," "Let's Be Glad We Are Living," etc.

Little Songs for Two. Love Poems.
Cloth, $1.50 Net

These are love lyrics, of course. "Forty-one delicious, finely sentimental poems written in inimitable style," says the Portland Oregonian, and the San Francisco Call adds that they are "As exquisite as any of the work upon which he has built his reputation." This is an ideal gift book for lovers of all ages.

Rimes to be Read. Miscellaneous Poems.
Cloth, $1.75 Net

This book contains a wide variety of story-poems and character-sketches, ranging from the foolery of "The Young Man Waited," the satire of "The Other One Was Booth," and the keenness of "Fin de Siecle" to the tense dramatic interest of "Connor McCarthy," causing Thomas E. Watson to exclaim in a magazine review, "Did Bryant or Whittier or Lowell write verses better than these?"

The Uncommon Commoner and similar songs of democracy. Cloth, $1.75 Net

"Since Whitman there has been no other poet who so surely gripped the vital things of democracy," says Secretary of War Baker. "Most of the lessons which the world is now learning will be found simply and winsomely told in this volume." William Allen White commends the "straight-from-the-shoulder" style, and Brand Whitlock expresses his debt of gratitude for the poems, which he says he owes "in common with all Americans."

MORRIS, A. T., and CARTON MOOREPARK

OLD FRIENDS AND NEW FABLES

The fables in which animals are the chief actors have never lost their savor. Other forms of literature have their brief periods of popularity, but the fable is evidently for all time. Perhaps it is the children themselves who have conferred this immortality upon the fable. They never grow tired of stories the characters in which consist of their old friends in the animal kingdom. That experienced and sympathetic writer, Alice Talwin Morris, has written a delightful set of new fables, which have been illustrated by Carton Moorepark, who may be said to have an international reputation for his treatment of animal and nature studies. This large book with its mounted colored illustrations and its interesting animal stories will appeal to children of all ages. Illustrated with 24 fully colored plates of animals by Carton Moorepark.

RANDALL, JOHN HERMAN

THE ESSENCE OF DEMOCRACY

Democracy is the great word of the hour. Never before has this great word dominated so largely the world's thinking. When President Wilson set forth his reasons for the entrance of the United States into the world's greatest conflict, summing it all up in that new classic phrase "to make the world safe for Democracy," he established it forever as the practical ideal for human striving the whole world round.

Dr. Randall here sets forth that Democracy will be glorious or inglorious according to the content we put in the great word; if it means nothing more than the politicians say it means then it is a futile thing. In his usual convincing manner he shows that real Democracy is a thing of the inner life, and must not only be a belief, but an experience.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF POWER OR WHAT TO LIVE FOR

The demand of the 20th century is not so much for new beliefs as for actual knowledge. While there will always be a place in human life for speculative thought and as long as one thinks at all for one's self, he must formulate some philosophy of life, still what every man must live by is the knowledge born out of actual experience. With the crumbling of the old traditional creeds, there will continue to come ever new and fresh restatements of the basic truths of life. But the need of the hour is for a formulation of the practical principles which everyday experience has demonstrated to be most effective in bringing life to the fullness of all its latent powers.

In his new book, "The Philosophy of Power," Dr. Randall attempts such a formulation of principles, apart from all doctrinal questions of speculative interest. It might be regarded as the Creed of the practical man who cares little about theology or dogma, and yet who is conscious of a need of some practical working philosophy for life.

RANDALL—(Continued)

THE LIFE OF REALITY

In these days of great personal perplexities, and gigantic world-problems, every thoughtful man and woman is earnestly bent upon the search for reality. Out of the din of conflicting voices, out of the chaotic confusion of clashing opinions, one question emerges supreme over all. Amid all the deceptive appearances of life and in spite of life's disillusionments, is there such a thing as Reality, to which our human gropings may lead? Can it be found and experienced in the daily storm and stress of life, and if so, what is the pathway by which man may approach and live "the life that is life indeed"?

Dr. Randall firmly believes that such a real life is possible to every man, and in the chapters of this book he seeks to point out the sources and nature of that Reality for which, since the world began, every soul has been searching either consciously or unconsciously, the various paths of experience through which one moves toward the great discovery, and the resulting freedom and power in the life of the individual, who has attained the soul's supreme quest.

HUMANITY AT THE CROSS-ROADS

The writer believes that the true ideals of any people grow out of its actual philosophy of life and its conception of religion. Organized religion to-day has failed to grasp the significance of the new truth and seems powerless to furnish the vital forms of expression through which the resurging life shall find adequate and living manifestation. Can religion regain its lost leadership and give to the world the great ethical and spiritual dynamic demanded in the new age now dawning?

BALLAD OF READING GAOL. By Oscar Wilde.

Only when neglected and despised, ill and miserable, did sincere feeling bring forth in Oscar Wilde his one great poem, "The Ballad of Reading Gaol;" the utter hopelessness of the condemned felon is communicated to the reader's mind in all its gruesome intensity.

BEAUTIES OF NATURE. By Sir John Lubbock.

CORSAIR AND LARA. By Lord Byron. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

The extraordinary interest at the present time in Byron demands that two of his complete works be presented in this series. No better understanding of this "wild child of nature" can be obtained than in Corsair and Lara.

COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The incident on which the story of The Courtship of Miles Standish is based was a tradition in the family of the author and is a good portrayal of early colonial life.

DESTRUCTION OF POMPEII. By Pliny and Bulwer.

Two interesting descriptions of the Destruction of Pompeii: one by Pliny, the greatest scientist of the ancient world, who wrote as an eye-witness; the other the well-known and thrilling account from Lord Lytton's "Last Days of Pompeii."

DISCOURSES OF EPICTETUS. Selections.

In Sir John Lubbock's "List of the One Hundred Best Books," the Bible is first, the "Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" second, and "Epictetus" third.

DUTY OF HAPPINESS AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Sir John Lubbock.

Thoughts and quotations in which this renowned philosopher has taken the most comfort in times of depressed spirits, hoping in reprinting the substances of them that they may be of use to others also.

ELEGY AND OTHER POEMS. By Thomas Gray.

The "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" occupies as secure a place among English classics as "Hamlet" or "Paradise Lost," but some readers may not realize that several poems by Gray are equally perfect and impressive. This collection contains all of Gray's verse which is really worth knowing.

ENOCH ARDEN. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

In "Enoch Arden" we have one of the most beautiful and pathetic poems in the English language. Had Tennyson never written another line, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest poets of his time.

EVANGELINE. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The purity, sweetness and refinement with which Longfellow delineates the affections of the heart make his poetry the most welcome of visitants at the domestic fireside, and of all his poems, "Evangeline" is probably the most popular.

FRIENDSHIP AND LOVE. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mr. Emerson is no bookish theorist. He does not draw his conclusions from syllogisms, but from his personal observations of men and things. The essays on Friendship and Love, two of his most human, being subjects akin to each other, are published together as a single volume.

GOLD BUG. By Edgar Allan Poe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

A story of great effect and absorbing interest, one of those rare books that once opened is not closed until the last paragraph is finished.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS. By Fenelon.

Judiciously made extracts from the letters of the great archbishop. Fenelon united in his personality the sweetness of the saint with the strength of the reformer, and his personal correspondence contains the very heart and soul of religious devotion.

GOLDEN WINGS. A Prose Romance and a Poem. By William Morris.

Two early productions of Morris's with the same title. The Prose Romance, written in 1856, while still a student at Oxford, and the Poem, two years later, both of which show the irresistible and quaint charm apparent in all the later writings of this architect, painter, designer, craftsman, socialist and author—who, on the death of Tennyson, was thought by many would be the next Poet Laureate.

HEROISM AND CHARACTER. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

As Friendship and Love are linked, so Heroism and Character are complementary. In fact, we perceive a strong connection between the four subjects.

HOLY GRAIL. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

This idyl, which must rank as one of the greatest of Tennyson's poetical achievements, came to him suddenly, "as if by a breath of inspiration."

JULIET AND ROMEO. From the Italian of Luigi Da Porto. With an introductory essay by Dr. W. J. Rolfe.

A translation of the original story from which Shakespeare conceived the plot of "Romeo and Juliet." This edition is edited by Dr. W. J. Rolfe, the greatest living authority on Shakespeare.

KING OF THE GOLDEN RIVER. By John Ruskin.

"The King of the Golden River" was written in 1841, at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement, without any idea of publication. Later, with the passive assent of Ruskin, the charming allegory was publicly printed, and literature is thereby the gainer of this most pleasing little work.

L'ARLESIENNE. By Alphonse Daudet. With a biographical sketch by M. F. Sweetser.

L'Arlesienne is the best of Daudet's dramas, and is responsible for his fame as a playwright as well as a novelist.

LADY MONTAGU. Selected Letters.

Lady Mary Montagu, who lived from 1690 to 1762, derived her marvellous literary talents from her relationship to Henry Fielding, the novelist, and Sir John Evelyn, the diarist.

LEAVES OF GRASS. Selections. By Walt Whitman.

Walt Whitman is looked upon as the one distinctive American poet, the product of our New World democracy. Though perhaps lacking in grace, his poems are inspired by his enthusiasm and humanitarianism, and in every line the reader sees the personality of the poet—noble, generous and lofty—a great man in the highest sense of the word.

LETTERS TO A YOUNG MAN ABOUT TOWN. By William Makepeace Thackeray.

These charming but comparatively little known essays originally appeared in Punch, and, until the present edition, have been reissued in a volume by themselves but once, and then in a privately printed book now extremely rare. In his humorous and satirical manner, Thackeray shows up the follies and life of a young man about town in the middle of the nineteenth century.

LITTLE BOOK OF EASTERN WISDOM. Collected by Rev. Claude Field.

A notable collection of epigrams, quotations, etc., from the immortal philosophers and sages of ancient times.

These letters of sound counsel and practical advice, addressed to his son, Philip, are what Lord Chesterfield's reputation rests upon, and it is through these that the name of Chesterfield has become symbolic of culture and refinement.

LOVE LETTERS OF A VIOLINIST. By Eric Mackay.

Originally published in England, with the name of the author suppressed, these charming love sonnets created much discussion as to authorship, some even claiming they were the work of Swinburne—from whom only it seemed could originate the fertility of thought, grace of language, ingenuity, skill in the ars poetica, wealth of words, and classic resources.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. I. By L'Abbé Prévost. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. II.

Not only in French, but in the emotional literature of our world has Manon Lescaut taken a classical place, and is a profound lesson drawn from weakness of human nature.

MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY. By Edward Everett Hale.

Written to foster patriotism during the Civil War, "The Man Without a Country" still holds to-day as large a claim as ever on the English-reading public.

MEN AND WOMEN. By Robert Browning.

Browning is known the world over for his deep-veined humanity and rare faculty of dramatic representation. These poems have as much red blood in them as the dramas of Shakespeare. The present volume contains all the principal favorites which have sung themselves into the memory of every reader who loves vigorous, manly poetry.

MILTON. By Lord Macaulay.

A profound and masterly essay on the leader of English literature of the seventeenth century by the leading literary critic of the nineteenth century.

NAPOLEON ADDRESSES AND ANECDOTES.

Napoleon was not only a consummate genius as general and ruler, he was also a man of extraordinary personality. So much of his magnetism and personal charm is preserved in these anecdotes and speeches that we become completely en rapport with the great emperor and cannot fail to share the enthusiasm of his contemporaries.

PASSION IN THE DESERT, AND AN EPISODE IN THE REIGN OF TERROR. Selected Prose Works of Honore de Balzac.

Balzac is thought by many competent authorities to be the greatest novelist of the world. His short stories are quite as remarkable in their way as his longer stories, and the very best of them are to be found in the present collection.

PAUL AND VIRGINIA. By Bernardin de St. Pierre. With a biographical sketch of the author.

One of the most beautiful works in romantic literature, a production which gave St. Pierre everlasting fame.

PETER SCHLEMIHL. By Adelbert von Chamisso. With a biographical sketch of the author.

This fantastic tale has attained world-wide fame. Founded on the old superstition that the devil could take a man's shadow, poor Peter is driven from town to town and wanders over the whole world. To the young this story appeals as a fairy-tale, but for others it has a deep ethical significance.

POEMS OF SENTIMENT. By Byron.

Probably no poet in the English-speaking world has ever held as high and well recognized a position as a "sentimentalist" as George Gordon, Lord Byron. His master lyrics dealing with the subject of love, consisting principally of his shorter poems, have been selected and edited with the greatest care for this edition.

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC. By Benjamin Franklin.

A selection of the best sayings from the numerous issues of "Poor Richard." Helpful and inspiring; the work of a most practical mind, written for a most practical nation.

Including all of the Departmental Ditties.

RIP VAN WINKLE AND THE LEGEND OF SLEEPY HOLLOW. By Washington Irving.

These immortal stories of Dutch life in colonial New York are the best pieces of writing that Mr. Irving contributed to literature. The pathos, quaintness, and wit are impressed upon the reader in a striking way.

ROCHEFOUCAULD'S MAXIMS.

These maxims, written by a cavalier of Richelieu's time, one who knew the world as few have an opportunity of knowing it, are witty, subtle and true. The author has grasped the whole of life, and weakness of human nature, of fashion and conventionalities are strongly depicted.

RUBAIYAT OF OMAR KHAYYAM.

The "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" is one of the greatest contributions that the East has given to literature. The subtle thought, the soft Oriental imagery, and the delicacy of the poetry will appeal to the poetic imagination of all ages.

SALOME. By Oscar Wilde.

Originally published in French, "Salome" was translated into English the following year, and since then translations have appeared in Spanish, Swedish, German, Polish and Russian, showing the truth of the German statement that to-day Oscar Wilde is a "World's Poet" and "Salome" a "World's Play."

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL. By Sheridan.

Sheridan's comedies are second only to Shakespeare's. "The School for Scandal" undoubtedly his masterpiece, has had an undiminished popularity from the moment it was published to the present day.

SELECTED POEMS. By John Boyle O'Reilly.

Through several causes, but not lack of merit, Boyle O'Reilly is fast becoming merely a name to the generation of to-day. Therefore, pains have here been taken to perpetuate the choicest productions of his pen—poems worthy of rank with the masterpieces of English literature.

SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY PAPERS. By Addison.

The famous "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers" are not only treasured by all students of English literature, but by historians as well. For nowhere do we find a finer description of English life in the eighteenth century than in these papers. Furthermore, in the character of Sir Roger we find the finest delineation in English literature of an ideal gentleman.

Some of the earlier sketches of the immortal Dickens, in which, however, are seen the clear and wonderful characterizations unequaled by any other modern author, and even unsurpassed in his later and better known works. His people live before you.

SNOW-BOUND. By John Greenleaf Whittier.

" 'Snow-bound' may fairly be said to sum up Whittier's personal experience, and yet so absolutely free is it from egotism that it has taken its place as the representative poem of New England country life.

SOME FRUITS OF SOLITUDE. Reflections and Maxims. By William Penn.

"To quote a book like this were impossible; at least one can hand it on, with a wrench, one to another. Some of the 'Fruits' are sounder, juicier, and grown against a sunnier wall of experience than others, but all are delicate, and the little basket which holds them will be found in all times and places a peaceful and sweet companion."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SONNETS FROM THE PORTUGUESE. By Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

In the "Sonnets from the Portuguese," a most exquisite series of love poems, we have Mrs. Browning at her best, and in sentiment and lofty rhyme she is at times truly Shakespearian.

PENELOPE'S SECRET

Penelope Donne is a lone little girl whose mother is dead and whose father is abroad. She lives with her father's brother and sister. Although everyone is extremely kind to her, nobody quite understands how much she wants somebody to play with who is not grown up. One day she meets, as she thinks, with the lady of the wishing stone, and asks her "to bring Daddy back, and to give her a magic carpet to take her everywhere, and a large family to play with." How her three wishes are granted, how she wanders about the country, not on a magic carpet, but in the company of a large family of cousins who are temporarily without a home, and finally meets her father, is told with many exciting details.

RENAISSANCE AND ITS MAKERS, THE

The purpose of this book is to lay before the general reader the main tendencies of the epoch that laid the foundation of modern life and thought. It also serves as a guide to the best of the vast literature of the subject.

The Renaissance movement in Italy is traced to its source and the consequent progress throughout Europe is set out in the historical order. The story is not confined to the Revival of Learning, but embraces its influence on Art, Philosophy, Social Life and Character. An effort has been made to focus in easy narrative the transition from Mediævalism to Modernism, and give a succinct account of the Fourteenth Century Revolution and its consequences for succeeding generations. Beginning with St. Francis of Assisi, the story ends with Francis Bacon. The method is episodic. We see the qualified Renaissance premonition in Dante, the last great Mediævalist; we observe the new spirit active in Petrarch, the first great modern, and in his pupil, Boccaccio. We follow the Renaissance beyond the Alps, into Germany, where Renaissance becomes Reformation; into the France of Rabelais, the Spain of Cervantes, the England of Sir Thomas Moore.

The book is copiously and beautifully illustrated in color and black and white.

THE ENGLISH YEAR

"The English Year" is an endeavor to present by word and picture the meaning and savor of the months and seasons. Wind and rain and frost; birds and beasts and insects; grasses and mosses and trees; the stars, even the accidents of our almanacs, combine to give each month a very distinct character. Without in any way attempting to exhaust the category, the authors have described under each month what is most characteristic.

The series of beautiful plates from some of the choicest efforts of living English artists, combined with Mr. Seaby's delightful drawings (nearly 200 in number), go to make these volumes undoubtedly the most charming nature books ever published.

He refers to California always as 'God's Country,' and if you permit him to start his God's country line of talk it is all up with intelligent conversation for the rest of the day."

IN these days of great personal perplexities and gigantic world-problems, every thoughtful man and woman is earnestly bent upon the search for reality. Out of the din of conflicting voices, out of the chaotic confusion of clashing opinions, one question emerges supreme over all. Amid all the deceptive appearances of life and in spite of life's disillusionments, is there such a thing as Reality, to which our human gropings may lead?

JOHN HERMAN RANDALL

in his LIFE OF REALITY answers these questions, and in his

PHILOSOPHY OF POWER,
HUMANITY AT THE CROSS ROADS,
THE CULTURE OF PERSONALITY,
A NEW PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE,

has made clear to the reader many of the perplexing questions of this time.

EDMUND VANCE COOKE

in his books

has given to children in prose and poetry, wit and humor that they can understand, and in his "IMPERTINENT POEMS" and RIMES TO BE READ he has given to the older person verses that express the entire range of emotion from the dramatic to that of satire, and in his

By MARGOT ASQUITH

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF MARGOT ASQUITH

Illustrated. 8vo. 2 vols. Net, $10.00

The very announcement that Mrs. Asquith was at work on these memoirs created a stir in social and political England, so great is the reputation for candor of the piquant, brilliant and fearless wife of the ex-prime minister. "Be sure to trust yourself and do not worry about the critics," is the advice that Lord Morley gave Mrs. Asquith when he heard that she was writing her memoirs. She followed his advice for she is charming, witty, unconventional in this volume which reveals an almost uncanny power of observation, commits some delightful indiscretions and gives us, what in a sense, is perhaps surprising, much pathos.

Daughter of the late Sir Charles Tennant, Margot Tennant from girlhood has numbered among her friends and acquaintances most of the famous men and women of her time. Some of her happiest memories are of Gladstone and Jowett. There are frank, graphic sketches of the members of her family, of King Edward VII as Prince of Wales and King, of Queen Alexandra, of Lord and Lady Randolph Churchill, Chamberlin, Lord Rosebery, Balfour, Huxley, Bowen, Sir Charles Dilke, Salisbury, Harcourt, Campbell-Bannerman, Lord Curzon, George Wyndham, John Addington Symonds, Meredith, Lord Morley, and many another, touched in by turns with sympathy, humor, mordant wit, and always with a swift and shrewd analytical power. But she is not more unflatteringly truthful in presenting these portraits than in drawing her own: among the cleverest things in the book are Mrs. Asquith's character studies of herself.

Mrs. Asquith's book will be one of the most talked-of books in America. Aside from its pictures of a very piquant and winning personality, the world figures that it limns are, many of them, as interesting to Americans as to Englishmen.

By HAROLD SPENDER

THE PRIME MINISTER

The Life and Times of David Lloyd George. Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $4.00

In this very full and authoritative biography of the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, the author draws on the firsthand accounts of those who possess intimate knowledge of the Prime Minister.

Mr. Spender is able to give the world for the first time a full account of Lloyd George's attitude towards the war and the conduct of the war in its inner Councils, including full details of the crisis which led to the formation of the second Coalition Government.

As a singularly vivid portrait of a man who stands at the head of one of the greatest governments of the world, this study of the British Prime Minister, by one who has access to most intimate sources of information, is a work of historic interest and value.

By ADMIRAL LORD FISHER

MEMORIES AND RECORDS

2 Vols. Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $8.00

The memoirs of the Admiral who built up the modern British navy and checkmated the Germans. Not since Nelson's Letters and Dispatches has a book created such a sensation.

"There is more truth in one line of 'Memories and Records' than in whole libraries of official histories. 'Memories' is a combination of profanity and generous tribute, humor and grimness, shrewdness and naivete, prejudice and vision; and playing over it all is a tremendous vitality and wit. . . . An extraordinary human document, by the man who is probably the greatest living genius of modern naval warfare."—New York Evening Post.

By WILLIAM E. BARTON

Author of "The Soul of Abraham Lincoln," etc.

THE PATERNITY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN:
Was He the Son of Thomas Lincoln?

An Essay on the Chastity of Nancy Hanks

8vo. Net, $4.00

Every student of the life of Abraham Lincoln is confronted with the question of Lincoln's paternity. Heretofore, there has been no work which supplied all the evidence in the case, and arrived at a definite conclusion founded on critical and historical research. Dr. Barton's book now completely fills this need.

Dr. Barton's long research in connection with his book "The Soul of Abraham Lincoln" has qualified him to deliver the definitive word on the subject. In this new volume he traces every rumor and report relating to the question of Lincoln's birth, assembles all the evidence, and subjects it to the most exacting critical analysis. As a result he has arrived at the truth and renders a judgment from which he believes there can be no successful appeal. This is a book which will become one of the foundation stones in the future study of Lincoln; no library, no one interested in the life of the Great Emancipator can afford to be without it.

By WILLIAM E. BARTON, LL.D.

THE SOUL OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

8vo. Net, $4.00

After a lifetime of devoted study, Dr. Barton has written what may justly be called a definitive account of the ethical convictions and the spiritual life of the great president. Born himself in Illinois, and living for a number of years in Kentucky, Dr. Barton has followed with intimate personal knowledge and thorough historical investigation the career of Lincoln in his successive environments. He has thus succeeded in reconstructing a historical setting for the growth of Lincoln's religious ideas, which not only passes the strictest test of known fact but adds as well several important items to our knowledge of a personality of abiding interest.

By JAMES M. BECK

Author of "The Evidence in the Case," etc.

THE PASSING OF THE NEW FREEDOM

12mo. Net, $1.50

The many thousands who read Mr. Beck's powerful discussion of Germany's guilt will welcome this new contribution on current problems from his vigorous pen.

Mr. Beck discusses with sincerity and courage President Wilson's Constitutional theories and governmental policies. He gives dramatic power to his discussion of vital issues by writing a portion of his book in the form of imaginary conversations between President Wilson, Clemenceau, Lloyd George, Orlando and Baron Makino in Paris. Through his keen satire runs a powerful argument which will arrest the attention of all who are interested in the preservation of American institutions. Those who may not be convinced will be charmed by the literary grace of this novel form in which great personalities and vital policies of world-wide moment are discussed without gloves.

JOHN ERSKINE

Professor of English at Columbia University

DEMOCRACY AND IDEALS: A DEFINITION

12mo. Net, $1.50

How are we to mold into one nation the diverse national strains and conflicting aims of our citizens?

How are we to make citizens and set up a standard of better citizenship?

How can we overcome our national fault of detachment from the past, visualize our common ends and collaborate to secure them?

These and other questions of deep interest to all Americans are set forth by Professor Erskine in a most readable volume. Here is a definition, clear and inspiring, of national ideals and the method by which they are to be realized.

By DAVID JAYNE HILL

Author of "Americanism—What Is It?" "A History of Diplomacy in the International Development of Europe," etc.

AMERICAN WORLD POLICIES

12mo. Net, $3.50

What is the sound course, the sure ground in American world policy?

What has the Senate really fought for and why?

Is there a way out?

David Jayne Hill answers these questions and discusses the whole question of the Peace Treaty in this volume. He makes an admirably clear and convincing statement of the problem before us, for which every intelligent American will be grateful. Without malice or bitterness he shows the disillusionment about the league, the hostility which blocked concerted action on the part of the President and the Senate, and the choice which must be made between the League and the Constitution. An appendix gives the chief documents in the case.

By CAPTAIN F. BRINKLEY, R.A., and BARON KIKUCHI

A HISTORY OF THE JAPANESE PEOPLE

X+784 pages, generously illustrated with over 150 engravings on wood by Japanese artists, with many halftones, plates in colors, maps and an index.

8vo. Net, $4.50

Here in one volume is just that information about the past of the Japanese people that the well informed American needs to form an intelligent opinion on the Japanese problem as it affects America racially and economically.

Captain Brinkley, the author of this history, entered Japan in 1867 as a professor in the Imperial College, later becoming foreign advisor to the Japanese Government. He married a Japanese wife and thoroughly identified himself with Japan. No other non-Japanese is so familiar with Japan's history or has played so important a part in the direction of its national policy.

This book is recognized by experts as the authoritative English source of information about the Japanese people.

Baron Kikuchi who has collaborated with the author is to Japan what Charles W. Eliot is to the United States—a leader of the educational and intellectual life of the country.

By OTTO H. KAHN

OUR ECONOMIC AND OTHER PROBLEMS

8vo. Net, $4.00

After the Peace, the economic problem. What must be done to set the world again on its feet financially? Mr. Kahn makes a brilliant contribution to this baffling problem. He discusses the railroads constructively, he exposes the fallacies of an ill-designed taxation, and he lays bare the fundamentals of our economic structure.

Mr. Kahn occupies an international position in the world of finance.

He speaks with an authority that is based on wide practical experience. He deals with today, but he brings to his discussions the visions of tomorrow. His book is one that everybody interested in the working out of our great national problems should read.

By G. A. BIRMINGHAM

AN IRISHMAN LOOKS AT HIS WORLD

12mo. Net, $2.00

Whoever is interested in the fate of Ireland and her part in world affairs can not afford to miss this very enlightening book in which with deep insight and level-headedness the famous Irish author explains the present condition of Ireland.

By HECTOR MACQUARRIE

Author of "How to Live at the Front," "Over Here," etc.

TAHITI DAYS

Illustrated. 8vo. Price to be announced

Tahiti has become a magic word of late years since so many of our younger literary men have passed that way—Rupert Brooke, Somerset Maugham and many others.

Here is a record of leisurely, colorful days in Tahiti, quaint personalities, quaint customs, the movies of a western civilization under the palm thatch of the South Sea islands—a book for those who love to go a-voyaging to far corners of the earth where only the fortunate few find time to linger. The book is very beautifully illustrated with photographs.

By A. S. ROE

Author of "China As I Saw It."

CHANCE AND CHANGE IN CHINA

Illustrated. 12mo. Net, $3.00

This is a book of the China of the Republic, not in any sense a political book nor yet greatly concerned with present economic conditions across the Pacific, but a book that deals with the spirit of those millions of Chinese whose lives are only superficially touched by the political changes, but whose spirits are profoundly stirred by the increasingly liberal atmosphere of their country.

Mrs. Roe approaches her subject with keen appreciation and insight, and a vividness of narrative that makes fireside voyaging in her company a very pleasant thing.

By K. WALISZEWSKI

POLAND THE UNKNOWN

Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $2.25

The average American's acquaintance with Poland's history is confined to the tragic fact of her dismemberment by Russia, Prussia and Austria. Of her long and once glorious history, of the causes which lead to the decline of her prosperity, of the conspiracies formed against her by rapacious neighbors, the American public knows little or nothing. M. Waliezewski's book gives just that background of fact and interpretation that any one needs to understand the present position and the future problems of the New Poland which just now is playing such a large part in the European situation.

By ARTHUR JAMES BALFOUR

ESSAYS AND ADDRESSES

12mo. Net, $3.00

This volume dealing with cultural, historical and political subjects is the fruit of one of the ablest minds of our generation. Arthur James Balfour appears here as both scholar and statesman and these essays touch on subjects of the most varied character, ranging from a revue of M. Bergson's "Evolution Creatrice" and "Beauty and the Criticism of Beauty" to brief notes on "Zionism," "The Freedom of the Seas" and "Irish Nationality and Home Rule." Among other writings on the war the book contains Balfour's reply for the British to President Wilson's request for a statement of the objects of the Entente in the War.
This book continues and brings down to date Mr. Wilfrid M. Short's admirable book of a few years ago "The Mind of Arthur James Balfour" and with it forms a complete revelation of one of the great leaders of Anglo-Saxon thought.

By F. FRANKFORT MOORE

Author of "The Jessamy Bride," etc.

A GARDEN OF PEACE: A MEDLEY IN QUIETUDE

Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $3.00

THE ROMANCE OF MADAME TUSSAUD'S

Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $5.00

More vividly than any page of history, these memoirs of one of the most famous institutions of Europe spread out the picturesque panorama of social, political and literary life since the days of the French Revolution. Memories of Dickens and the famous Jarley's Wax Works recur as one dips into these highly colored pages, pages as rich as life itself in their bizarre, scandalous, tragic, solemn and ludicrous glimpses of the men and manners of a whole period.

This story of Madame Tussaud has an appeal for every kind of reader. She held the mirror up to life and the amazing reflections are all here, a gallery of incomparable puppets, history made romantically visible in wax.

WASTE PAPER PHILOSOPHY

Price to be announced

No one can read this brief philosophy of life, addressed to a son, without being greatly moved by it.

The author, Captain T. P. C. Wilson, was an Oxford man, who died on the Western Front. Before he entered the army he had achieved a substantial reputation for essays, poems and criticisms in such publications as the English Review, Punch, the Westminster Gazette and elsewhere. This frank, genuine and straight-from-the-shoulder talk to a son appears supplemented by a collection of Captain Wilson's poems, a number of which have been copied from his diary, found in his kit after his death. A very fine, sensitive spirit is discovered beneath the prose and poetry, and the volume altogether is one that the publishers are proud to place before appreciative American readers.

ENJOYING LIFE and OTHER LITERARY REMAINS

8vo. Net, $2.00

The late W. N. P. Barbellion's "Journal of a Disappointed Man," over whose authorship a fierce controversy has just been waged, took its place at once in the rare literature of self-revelation, alongside of Augustine's Confessions, Cellini's Autobiography, Pepys' Diary and Rousseau's Confessions.

These stories, essays and autobiographical fragments are the last of the literary legacy left by Barbellion. They are alive with all the fire and passion which made the "Journal," to quote the Literary Digest, "a book of haunting beauty, a work of singular individuality, more thrilling than many a novel."

He pokes among the obvious with the tip of his walking-stick and invariably turns up the fresh, the amusing, the true and half-seen things that lie just below the surface. A gossipy, likeable, readable book, as full of personal revealing as it is of pleasant discovery.

OUR WOMEN: Chapters on The Sex-Discord

8vo. Net, $2.00

This book is written by a man; there is no pretense that it is written by a hermaphrodite, a sexual, or inhuman being, or even by a superhuman individual. . . . . Discord exists between the sexes. It always has existed, and it always will. These chapters are an expression of the discord. Further I have no hope or desire to resolve the discord, to establish harmony and put an end to the vast altercation. My object is merely to assist a little in the development of the altercation. . . . The sex discord may be the most exasperating thing in existence, but it is by general agreement the most delightful and most interesting.

SOUTH SEA FOAM

12mo. Net, $2.50

The exotic and primitive appeal of the South Seas is in this volume to a marked degree. Here are the extraordinary reminiscences of a "Modern Quixote of the Southern Seas," who, following the ardent, adventurous spirit of youth," lived among the natives of the Polynesian Islands. He played his violin before the old chiefs, gathering a precious store of legends and a picture gallery of barbarian character-portraits, living a semi-pagan life in the midst of the langorous tropical beauty of the South Sea Islands, and consorting with the natives as George Borrow did with the Romany Chile.

This record will have real fascination for all who find interest in the unaccountable whims and passions which lead men into the wilds and set them once more happily in the midst of a savage life from which civilization has been struggling for centuries to escape.

"I have viewed our beautiful, unreal world from end to end," he continues, "and here I present myself as Showman, whose moods pass as the shadows themselves, whose assets are travel and reflection—knowledge of many lands and many peoples, whose qualities are a little philosophy, a little humor, some tolerance, a worship of nature, and a love of his fellows."

ABANDONED FARMERS

Illustrations by Tony Sarg. 12mo. Net, $2.50

Always the most American of Americans, Cobb is even more so than usual in these deliciously amusing—and tragic—tales of one who returns to the soil to "enjoy the pleasures of a landed proprietor's lot—the word 'landed' being here used to imply one baited, hooked, and caught; i. e., a landed sucker."

Thus speaks the author. But that is not the whole story. The back-to-the-land passion is after all an emotion of much nobility. Its root is whole and sound and in these pictures of the would-be farmer the true joys are not dimmed. It would be too much to ask Irvin Cobb to let slip the chance for a humorous portrait of the hero-farmer. He does him full justice. But you love him for his folly—and you enjoy Cobb every minute.

DAISY ASHFORD: HER BOOK

With a Preface by Irvin S. Cobb 12mo. Net, $2.00

No book since "Alice in Wonderland" has so established itself in the hearts and lives of people as Daisy Ashford's child masterpiece, "The Young Visiters."

Now that everyone from the professor to the debutante has had a chance to decide personally that Daisy Ashford is a thrice-blessed reality and not merely a gorgeous myth, Daisy brings confusion to the few remaining skeptics and joy to her hundreds of thousands of readers by producing the stories she dictated to her father when she was seven years old.

Here are: "Short Story of Love and Marriage," "Leslie Woodcock," and "Where Love Lies Deepest." Also Daisy's most imposing novel "The Hangman's Daughter," which took a whole year to write. There is also added a novel by her sister called "The Jealous Governes."

For an inimitable mixture of naivete and sophistication Daisy Ashford is unsurpassed.

Cobb and Rinehart!—two of the best-known names in American fiction. These two authors have presented the indictment of the sexes: Mary Roberts of the MALE, Irvin Cobb of the FEMALE. A very novel feature of the book is that you may open it at either end and read to the middle—what might be termed a reversible duet. The mood is one of hilarity and there is little more to be said about men or women when the prosecutors are through. The reader is the jury and he or she may side with both of the learned counsel without the least violence to honest opinion.

By WILLIAM O. STEVENS and ALLAN WESTCOTT

A HISTORY OF SEA POWER

Price to be announced

It is a very fascinating subject which Professors Stevens and Westcott have undertaken to set down in this history of sea power.

Beginning with the very earliest known records of Phoenecian and Athenian sea-faring, they have traced the rise and fall of navies, merchantman and man-of-war, down to the present day. The vista of history which is thus opened up is one of the most romantic and significant in human annals. In a way the authors have told a history of civilization from the point of view of sea power, and have shown most clearly the close interdependence of national power and control of the seas.

Apart from its more informational side and its graphic records both in word and diagram of the critical naval battles of history, this book has a broad appeal which will be recognized by all who love the sea and appreciate a new outlook upon world history.

The authors are both on the Academic staff of the English Department of the U. S. Naval Academy and their work has received the official approval both of the Academy authorities and of the Navy Department. It has been adopted by the Academic Board of the Naval Academy for use in its historical course.

A HISTORY OF THE A.E.F.

With a complete guide to the Western Front.

With over 75 Maps and diagrams. 8vo. Net, $5.00

This History of the American Expeditionary Forces, written with the consent of the War Department and corrected and approved by the Historical Branch of the General Staff of the Army, embraces the entire activities of the American troops in France.

The first part of the book gives a clear and vivid picture of all engagements of the A. E. F., showing the relative importance of battles, with a summary of the actions of the Allied armies. The latter part of the book tells the story of the auxiliary arms, the Air Service, the Heavy Artillery, the Tank Corps, the Chemical Warfare Corps, and the growth, development and intimate relation to the combat troops of the enormous Service of Supply. The Quartermaster bases, the building of huge cities of supply; the Ordnance Department's problems and achievements; the Motor Transport Corps; the Engineers, and the Medical Corps, in which the entire system of treating a wounded man, from the time he is wounded until he arrives at a base hospital, is made perfectly clear. Finally, as an appendix, is given the outline history of each division with the statistical summaries showing the number of casualties, prisoners captured and distance gained.

A special feature of the book is a guide to the battlefront for visitors to France, with special reference to scenes of action of American troops. The author has laid out in detail three trips hinging on Paris which will afford a complete survey of the Western front.

By SIR IAN HAMILTON

Commander-in-Chief of the Gallipoli Expedition

GALLIPOLI DIARY

2 vols. 8vo. Net, $10.00

This book contains the remarkably frank self-revelation not only of a great general, but first and foremost, of a man of keen artistic sensibilities, an artist in words and sensations.

On the military side the book clarifies our knowledge of the great and tragic Eastern campaign in which Kitchener believed so strongly and which was doomed to failure by the opposition of France and the Commanders on the Western Front. But to dwell upon this military side is to miss the book's chief attraction: its characterizations of famous men, like Kitchener, Churchill and others, its satire on politics, its literary art and its appraisal of emotions; its sketches of Sir Ian Hamilton's principal officers, its bits of brilliant description, its sense of historical romance, its flights of prose-poetry, its fine atmospheric effects.

Sir Ian's GALLIPOLI DIARY is one of the books to grow out of war experience that can surely be expected to live not only because it is an intimate criticism of the higher conduct of the war, but most of all a sincere and unstudied analysis of the emotional effect of the war on an artistic temperament.

CARDINAL MERCIER'S OWN STORY

With a prefatory letter by His Eminence James Cardinal Gibbons.

New portrait frontispiece. 8vo. Net, $4.00

This book is a record of the greatest duel between spiritual power and brute force that the world has ever witnessed. No other book to come out of Europe has such a tremendous appeal for America as this work by Cardinal Mercier. It is one of the truly great and passionately moving documents of the generation. Cardinal Mercier writes of the material included in his book, "Here are my war experiences in their most tense and vivid reality; all the issues I fought with the occupying power, their methods and mine clearly defined, undeniably fixed in black and white."

In his prefatory letter Cardinal Gibbons says: "In this book the reader will realize the full meaning of Cardinal Mercier's attitude during the war and possess a true historical account of the great moral fight which was carried on by him as Belgium's spiritual leader."

WITH "THE DIE-HARDS" IN SIBERIA

12mo. Net, $2.50

Colonel Ward gives us a clear and startling picture of the Russian situation as he saw it with "The Die-Hard" Battalion in Siberia. He sketches the British, American, French and Japanese operations in Russia, with their inevitable tangle of policies and difficulties of action, the dictatorship of Admiral Koltchak at Omsk, the activities of Lenine and Trotzky, and the Red menace. His impression of the temper of the Russian people and their attitude toward their one-time allies is most enlightening. His narrative is straightforward and picturesque.

WITH "THE DIE-HARDS" IN SIBERIA is one of those books upon which the historian will draw when the final history of the great war is written.

In PARIS SEES IT THROUGH, Mrs. Adam gives us a day-to-day record of life and events in the French Capital, from the declaration of war to the signing of the peace. It is a charmingly simple and straightforward account of the war as it affected Parisians in their daily lives, and as it concerned an English resident in Paris in touch with men, women and affairs. The sort of book that future historians will turn to as a true and moving narrative of how Paris conducted herself during the years of the great conflict.

THE DOVER PATROL

2 Vols. 8vo. Net, $10.00

A story that could not be told during the war. Here in one rich canvas is the epic of the secret battle waged day and night under fearful conditions of weather and strain to keep the English coast safe, insure the transportation of food and troops across the Atlantic and the Channel, and keep watch upon the German fleet.

This is one of the most picturesque stories imaginable, comparable in its endless labors, its glorious heroisms, its relentless purpose to the great classic tales of the Romans and the Greeks. The book is of lasting value, not only for its absorbing interest, but also for its authentic contribution to the true history of the war.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE LEAGUE

12mo. Net, $2.00

"In restoring peace even more than in making war the touch of statesmanship must be strong and sure," writes Lord Eustace Percy in his remarkable summary of the world situation. Keenly alive to the dangers of a vacillating policy between nations at this time he urges a frank acceptance of facts as they are, uncloaked with catchwords which have lost all meaning, and the adopting of a consistent policy along broad and enlightened lines. And the lines of thought suggested will appeal to every thinking person as singularly sane and illuminating.

Lord Eustace devotes a large part of his book to an analysis of Anglo-American relations and the American attitude toward foreign affairs, an analysis that cannot but impress the American reader as unusually clear-sighted and just, as well as sympathetic and generous. THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE LEAGUE is a book distinctly for tomorrow and its new problems.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE ROYAL NAVY

Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $6.00

Sir Percy Scott tells with many illustrations the remarkable story of the struggle of a quarter of a century against conservatism at sea and officialism ashore in an effort to improve the gunnery and the general fighting efficiency of the British fleet. His book makes a very wide appeal since it is the story of a long and varied naval career, which, from the beginning in sailing days, did not terminate until the dreadnoughts, superdreadnoughts and submarines had made their appearance.

This work will rank as the most remarkable volume of British naval experience hitherto published, for the author was the foremost advocate of gunnery reform in the face of innumerable obstacles. It was the intervention of Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fisher and of Admiral Viscount Jellicoe that made possible the long-delayed task of equipping the ships of the British navy with Sir Percy Scott's Director Firing invention.

Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $5.00

A history of the development and use in the field of the most important instrument of attack. Marshal Foch said, "The Tanks broke the German defence and provided the extra margin of fighting power between two evenly matched combatants."

Then follows a description of Tanks—French, English and American—and all the important actions in which they took part. The book answers three questions, how did the Tanks contribute to the overthrow of the Germans? what would be the place of the Tank if another war broke out within the next generation? and what place are Tanks going to be given in the reconstituted army? A vivid and thrilling history of a remarkable corps whose spirit and tradition are summed up in the quiet phrase of their commanding officer, "The Tanks are accustomed to win."

DAYS OF GLORY

The Sketch Book of a Veteran Correspondent at the Front

With 50 Illustrations. 4to. Net, $5.00

Here is a book of great human interest for the general reader and also of lasting historic value for schools and libraries. There is no veteran War Correspondent living who holds such a record as Frederick Villiers. Reporting wars on foot and on a bicycle, he has been at the front in every great and small conflict, including 1877 with the Russians in Turkey, the Relief of Khartoum, Boer War, Bulgaria War, Port Arthur, with the Italians in Tripoli and the Great War. He used the first movie camera ever taken to the front.

These pictures are fascinating records by a man who drew what he saw with his own eyes in France and Flanders. They reveal details which will be valuable as historic data. Philip Gibbs, who was over much the same ground as Villiers, pays him a splendid tribute in his Introduction.

There is an introduction by the artist and accompanying each picture is the record and autograph of the man who sat for it. The pictures are in the best manner of one of the most distinguished portrait-painters of America. INDISCRETIONS OF THE NAVAL CENSOR

INDISCRETIONS OF THE NAVAL CENSOR (which, by the way, seems to be a misnomer due to the modesty of the author) gives a delightfully breezy and humorous account of the experiences of Rear-Admiral Sir Douglas Brownrigg, who, for four eventful years, occupied one of the most important posts in the British war machine. Here for the first time the bars are down and he lets us into many thrilling incidents of the Great War, all news of which was entirely suppressed at the time for obvious reasons.

As a ranconteur Sir Douglas is a distinct success. His style is vivid, fluent and entertaining. One feels that he enjoys the telling of his story as we enjoy the reading. Perhaps he is making up for those many months of enforced silence during the war! At any rate this story of what went on behind the curtain is not only highly romantic but illuminating as well.

Vol. II. 1917-1918. 8vo. 2 vols. Each net, $7.50

In the words of Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N. (Retired): "No other person ever commanded a force comparable in power with the force commanded by Admiral Jellicoe at the opening of the war." In THE GRAND FLEET, 1914-1916, which appeared shortly after the surrender of the German Fleet, Lord Jellicoe told of his fleet: the creation, development and work of the world's greatest navy with the first exhaustive and what has proved to be the definitive account of the Battle of Jutland, in which he justified his course on that momentous occasion. At the same time Lord Jellicoe had in mind a second volume which would describe the work carried out by the officers associated with him at the Admiralty in 1917—work which lead to the introduction of the convoy system and the successful measures taken to combat the submarine menace. This book which was delayed by Admiral Jellicoe's Canadian tour is now finished. It rounds out and completes the history of the British Grand Fleet during the War and together with the first volume will remain one of the greatest contributions to naval history.
Lord Jellicoe writes primarily for the layman in an interesting and vivid narrative style and his volumes are among the indispensable books which deal with the war at sea.

THE ARGONAUTS OF FAITH

The adventures of the "Mayflower" Pilgrims.

With Illustrations in color. 12mo. Net, $1.50

This is the story of the Pilgrims told for younger readers. Simple and direct and in close conformity with the historical records, this narrative still remains one of the greatest romantic tales of man's adventurous spirit. No legend of Greek or Roman literature surpasses it in beauty, in daring and in faith. Now that the eyes of Europe and America are turned upon the events of three hundred years ago, this book has particular appeal.

Viscount Bryce says: "It is by their faith and courage that the men who sailed in the Mayflower won undying fame. The memory of what they were and what they did is to-day one of the strongest links that bind America and England together. They set a noble example for the youth of England as well as for the youth of America to remember and to imitate. It is an example in which the generation now called upon, as it reaches manhood, to make good the losses of the war, may find stimulus and cheer. A time has now come again, as it came three centuries ago, in which faith and courage and constancy and the hopefulness which courage gives, must have their perfect work.

THE FOUNDING OF A NATION

12mo. Net, $2.25

This fine historical romance of the Pilgrims, the ship Mayflower and Plymouth Colony pulsates with reality. Its quaint phraseology and its graphic description of the everyday life of the colonists revives and makes very real the history of one of the chief events in the founding of our nation. Cavalier Beaumont in telling the story of his love for the "separatist" maiden, Lora Brewster, weaves a magic carpet which carries the reader back 300 years to the sailing of the Mayflower, the signing of the Compact, the landing at Plymouth Rock, the explorations, the building of the first log houses, the adventures with the Indians, the fire, the great sickness, death, the first harvest, the origin of Thanksgiving Day, the great drought and famine and the final establishment of the colony. Altogether it is a triumph of the historical novelists' art, based on Governor Bradford's long-lost "History of the Plimoth Plantation" and other authentic records. A story that every patriotic American will wish to read and treasure, especially in this year of the 300th Anniversary of the arrival of the Pilgrims.

PRINCE FETLAR

12mo. Net, $2.00

Miss Saunders is one of the very few authors in the "Million Class." Her first animal story, "Beautiful Joe," has sold a million or more copies. Probably five times as many children and grown-ups, too, have read it, so it is easily seen what an immense audience is awaiting her new book. They will be more than delighted with "Bonnie Prince Fetlar."

The Bonnie Prince is a Shetland pony who like "Beautiful Joe" and the famous "Black Beauty" tells the story of his life.

In the maturity of her art, Miss Saunders has written with singular vivacity and charm this matchless tale of the animal kingdom which will at once take its place as a classic of its kind. Into its pages is crowded all the wealth of sympathy and understanding of animal life which has everlastingly endeared her to animal lovers, young and old the world over.

THE LIFE BEYOND THE VEIL

2 vols. 12mo. Each, Net, $2.50

Vol. 1—The Lowlands of Heaven.
Vol. II—The Highlands of Heaven.

These books contain the most complete and illuminating record of spirit messages yet made public. They were received by a clergyman of the Church of England, a disbeliever in psychic research before these messages came through to him.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in his foreward, writes as follows:

"World-wide publicity is now being given to that revelation of the after life which of all others one would have selected to place before the public—the purest, the highest, the most complete, the most exalted in its source.

"And is this revelation subversive of all beliefs? A thousand times NO. It broadens them; defines them; it beautifies them; it fills in the empty voids which have bewildered us, it is infinitely reassuring and illuminating."

These two books are the first of four which will contain the messages complete. They have created a sensation in England among people of every religion.

SELECTIONS FROM SWINBURNE

8vo. Net, $2.00

This collection puts before the reader the most satisfactory selection of Swinburne's work that has yet been made. For several years there has been an increasing demand for a single volume which would show Swinburne's genius in its most interesting and characteristic phases. This book is an answer to that widespread demand.

The association of Edmund Gosse and Thomas James Wise is a most fortunate one and assures a degree of critical selection and appreciation of values which make this book not only admirably represetnative of Swinburne's best, but delightful reading for one who would enjoy again and again the lines that will not die.

THE POEMS OF ROBERT BURNS

The Poet of Democracy, Brotherhood, Religion and Love

Illustrated. 12mo. Net, $3.00

This collection is, we believe, unique. Mr. Hughes, who regards Burns as one of the greatest interpreters and revealers of the highest thoughts of humanity in regard to religion and ethics, human freedom and love, has selected only his masterpieces, those of his poems which have a universal appeal. This selection seems to be in harmony with the wish of Burns himself as recorded in a conversation just before his death when he regretted not having destroyed the many indifferent poems of merely local interest which are included in his collected works.

Mr. Hughes has arranged the poems under the four headings: Religious and Ethical Poems, Democratic Poems, Brotherhood Poems, Love Poems. One of the book's most appealing features are the wonderful pictures of the Burns country taken by the author himself with which it is profusely illustrated. Mr. Hughes has added an excellent working glossary and illuminating notes.

AN ANTHOLOGY OF HUMOROUS VERSE

8vo. Net, $6.00

"A hope of immortality and a sense of humor distinguish man from the beasts of the field," says Carolyn Wells in her introduction, and all who have a sense of humor will delight in this further collection by the genial compiler of SUCH NONSENSE.

If it is true, as the compiler says, that "the choice of these selections, like kissing, went by favor," we can only say that her favor is delightfully catholic. It runs from Gelett Burgess to Samuel Johnson, and includes our good friend Oliver Herford, Thomas R. Ybarra, W. S. Gilbert, Mark Twain, James Whitcomb Riley, and many other jovial favorites.

BIRDS AND OTHER POEMS

In this book of lyric verse, individual in feeling and rhythm, there is a strain of rare simplicity and a power of expression arising from a comprehension of beauty in nature and in the secret places of the soul of man.

J. C. Squire one of the most versatile and influential men of letters in England, is editor of the London Mercury. For the past five years his writings under the name of Solomon Eagle have been a feature of the New Statesman, and he has produced incomparably the best satires and satiric verse brought forth by the war.

MOONS OF GRANDEUR

12mo. Net, $1.25

A book of very unusual poetry, distinguished by a thoughtfulness, an almost classic beauty and simplicity of form, and a clear, pictorial quality that marks the poet as a keen and personal observer of life, a finished artist. Mr. Benet, formerly connected with the Century Magazine, is at present one of the editors of the New York Evening Post.

LEDA

4to. Net, $1.50

Vigorous, splendidly youthful poetry, touched with that originality and fire that is characteristic of Mr. Huxley's prose stories. These are the poems of one who stands on the threshold of life, passionately preoccupied with the unanswerable questions of youth. The point of view is intensely personal, yet the verse carries a message of wide significance.

Mr. Huxley is a young author whose first plunge into writing has astonished the critics, not only by the great promise of his work, but by the power and polish of the performance.

THE HAPPY BRIDE

12mo. Net, $1.25

This sheaf of lyrics is offered by one of England's younger group of poets, a granddaughter of Alfred, Lord Tennyson. Many generations of beauty-lovers have fashioned her. Yet she does not imitate. She sings her own song. And from her promise she will gain increasing power.

With the seeing eyes of the mystic, Miss Jesse finds hidden treasure in all things. Her song is rich in imagery and vibrant with spiritual understanding. It has, too, a certain limpid quality that reminds one of her great Victorian kinsman.

Miss Jesse is a poet in the fields of fiction and drama as well. The same deep poetic urge has touched "Sacred Bread," "Beggars on Horseback," and other volumes with a singular power.

SONGS FROM THE JOURNEY

12mo. Net, $1.25

Into these songs the poet has woven many dreams—dreams of the journey, of men and children, of women and the sea, of the coming of life and death, and of "white Manhattan of the lights," the Babylon of "lamped beauty," "terrible with the dark about her lingering."

There are strange songs, vibrant with passion, delicate with images of a singular sincerity and loveliness. Clear of eye for the little things, expressing our human emotions with a something else added. Mr. Barrett creates a beauty that makes true poetry of his visions.

FAIRIES AND CHIMNEYS

In its rhythm and gaiety Miss Fyleman's volume will be a happy one for all young readers.

WAR POEMS AND OTHER VERSES

12mo. Net, $1.50

This is the legacy of a poet-soldier killed in the war. The poems are mostly of the war, inspiriting, vital. But there are poems of peace too, the peace that the poet surrendered with what Edmund Gosse calls a "generous beauty of gesture."

G. K. Chesterton, in writing of Mr. Vernede's work, says, "He showed how clear a vision he carried of the meaning of all this agony and the mystery of his own death. No printed controversy or political eloquence could put more logically, let alone more poetically, the higher pacifism which is now resolute to dry up at the fountain-head the bitter waters of the dynastic wars, than the four lines (from 'Before the Assault') that run:

'Then to our children there shall be no handing
Of fates so vain, of passions so abhorred . . .
But Peace . . . the Peace which passeth understanding . . .
Not in our time . . . but in their time, O Lord.'"

SACRED AND PROFANE LOVE

A Play in Three Acts 12mo. Net, $1.50

In this dramatization of his famous novel Mr. Bennett has achieved that unusual combination, a play that can be both acted and read. The power of fine and penetrating analysis of character which marks Bennett the novelist as a creator of living personalities, enables Bennett the dramatist to project before us men and women that live and breathe and seem to move before our eyes, swept along in a dramatic action that holds the reader spellbound.

SACRED AND PROFANE LOVE is the romance of two great artists, Diaz, the master pianist, and Carlotta Peel, lover of music, novelist, but most of all just "woman." How they loved and parted through lack of faith, and how Carlotta, with the courage of a great nature, bridged again the gap between them, is the story, told with that intimate understanding of character and temperament that is the peculiar quality of Arnold Bennett's work.

AERIAL TRANSPORT

Quarto with 64 Illustrations and 4 Maps. Net, $12.00

Written in an informal, non-technical way, a book which gives a clear, uncolored statement of just what the commercial aircraft can do, and also —which is quite as important—what it cannot do. "What I seek above all in this book is to show the actual place of the aircraft in our general scheme of transport; the actual work it can do usefully, and the sort of things it would be foolish to ask it to do. Specially, too, I want to emphasize the point—which is indeed fundamental—that the aeroplane does not compete with existing forms of transport. It does somehing they cannot do. It supplements, not supplants them."—Foreword by the Author.

Valuable maps of the recent English-Australian and trans-atlantic flights, another showing the time-saving of the air-way, the fourth, a map of the world which shows what will be accomplished by 100 miles-an-hour aerial transport, as soon as routes are in regular operation.

THE SUPERHUMAN ANTAGONISTS

12mo. Net, $2.00

In his new book the celebrated English poet has attempted a very difficult task with astonishing success. For the persons of his story he has drawn on the Persian Zend-Avesta, and about the figures of Ormazd and Abriman and their accompanying deities he has woven with magnificent phantasy a poem at once stately and alluring. The shorter poems with which the book concludes are the work of a poet not only inspired but rarely skilled in the use of English with distinction—a very satisfying combination in this age of hasty and ill-finished poetical workmanship.

HE CAPTIVES

is a matter of no little interest that this new novel by Hugh Walpole als with London life and is the study of a girl and two men—particularly Maggie Cardinal. This novel, coming as it does on the heels of eremy," is a confirmation of his return to English life. Indeed, the fact at this story was begun in 1914 and has been for him one of the most sorbing stories he has adventured upon, is evidence that the Russian oks were a literary excursion, while the life and manners of his own ople are the abiding materials of his art.

r. Walpole regards "The Captives" as his most important literary ort. The scene of the novel is London and the seaside and his principal ures are set against the background of a curious religious sect which eached the end of the world and immediate judgment and of which aggie Cardinal's father was in a sense the prophet. The story of the rl, of the effect upon her of the intense emotional surroundings of her uth, of the love that comes into her life and the two men who offer such fferent answers to the eternal quest—these are the bare outlines of a vel which gives a new idea of Mr. Walpole's powers as an analyst of the minine mind.

rtain of the characters in "The Green Mirror" reappear in "The Cap-es" and the new book is said on good authority to be one of Mr. alpole's three favorites among his works. The other two are "The ıchess of Wrexe" and "The Green Mirror."

A POOR WISE MAN

12mo. Net, $2.00

Vigor, dramatic intensity and the sweep of a fine romance are here in this new novel by Mrs. Rinehart—a story of "all of us." The pages are as so many luminous windows before which one sits and, fascinated, watches the unfolding of a great American drama.

Mrs. Rinehart's frame of vision is not a narrow one. Spread before us in all its colors, brilliant and sombre, is the life we know, every stratum of society from Anthony Cardew, the Steel King, down to Jim Doyle, the radical leader, and Willy Cameron, the young chemist, whose devotion and courage are a link between the luxurious life of Lilly Cardew and the drab and bare existence of the Boyd household.

Again has Mrs. Rinehart touched our hearts and fired our imaginations. Again has she dramatized the scenes about us and perceived beneath the exteriors of men and women the passionate loyalties, sacrifices and loves which redeem life from its evil and pain.

In the foreground of the story is English Devonshire, a green and pleasant country with yet a forbidding element in its sinister sweep of downs. In the background is the far away castle in the Alps, the House of Dreams Come-True, dark against the flaring menace of the gypsy's prophecy.

If Jean had been an ordinary woman this story would have had a very different ending. But she was not an ordinary woman, nor was Blaize, with the white "mark of the Beast" in his dark hair, an ordinary man. The romance of their love with its hours of bitter trial and final fulfilment glows in the reader's mind with remarkable intensity.

"It is hardly too much to say that there is no one at the present time writing cleverer, better stories of the underworld than Mr. Packard. Since his first novel, 'The Miracle Man,' in which he gave a glimpse of underworld characters, purposes and viewpoint, his skill has steadily improved in the weaving plots, the manufacture of incidents and the handling of his material," says The New York Times, and now Packard has conceived another mystery story which will be a further delight to his many admirers.

Not pawned things but pawned people give Mr. Packard his title and theme for this new book which sets a high tension record that is unsurpassed in the whole Packard repertory. By a curious turn of fate each character in the story finds himself in pawn to another, none can act as he wants but as some one else dictates. The strange developments that arise from this curious circumstance, story speed, and strong romantic interest make PAWNED an absorbing drama which swings the reader in an exciting chaos of intricated action from New York to the South Seas and back again to play itself out on New York's East Side which Packard has already made a place of such fascinating interest in "The White Moll" and "Jimmie Dale."

NIGHT AND DAY

"Night and Day" is an admirable successor to Mrs. Woolf's first novel, "The Voyage Out," which marked the author as "the latest addition to that shining constellation of English realists which includes Walpole, Bennett, Wells and Swinnerton."

The theme of this new story is very different from that of the first, but all the characteristics of Mrs. Woolf's art are here and her insight has deepened. "Night and Day" is a love story pure and simple but one of singular maturity and depth. There are five young people whose love affairs—or rather potentialities—make up the history. Of these, the principal are Katharine Hilbery, child of fine Victorian culture andd tradition, and Ralph Hilbery, the crude but sturdy youth who loves her.

"Mrs. Woolf has the diversity of power which makes the great writer of narrative. She has above all something of a focus, a philosophy, which is rare enough among the many novelists of scattered enthusiasms and large rebellions. The most palpable quality of her work is its richness; in matter, in feeling, in commentary."—The New Republic.

ELI OF THE DOWNS

12mo. Net, $2.00

This book has a peculiar power of fascination. This life story of a shepherd of the English downs who took to sea and in his journeyings fell under the influence of Confuscianism is a tale utterly different from the conventional story.

The London Spectator says: "ELI OF THE DOWNS is more than a work of promise: Mr. Peake tells the life history of one who was 'a shepherd at heart as well as by profession' with a wealth of illuminating detail, with a love of his subject and an intimate knowledge of Wessex country life that combine to make the story memorable and delightful. Did not Gibbon say that conversation might enrich the intellect but that solitude was the true school of genius? Eli Buckle, the shepherd hero of the story, was neither a misanthrope nor a recluse, but his calling involved isolation and turned him towards meditation; then for many years he was an errant knight, who roamed over the world by sea and land, 'running away from himself,' but turned in the end towards 'the Lady Solitude' and 'took her for his bride' on the Wessex Downs where he had been born. All the early part of his life is admirably told and the story of his Odyssey in search of peace, as a sailor, on ranches in British Columbia, among the Siwashes in the mountains, is full of incident and color."

RESPONSIBILITY

12mo. Net, $2.00

In this novel by a new and as yet unknown English writer the publishers are privileged to offer a work of unusual performance. Readers on the alert for signs of power and individuality in new authors will find in RESPONSIBILITY a measure of genius that is unmistakable.

"In Mr. Agate a new and permanent addition to real literature has arrived. For the sake of perfectly unjustified curiosity, we should have liked to know more of Mr. Agate himself. Not that we believe that the private history of an author is in the least important except to himself and his friends. But when such a portent as Mr. Agate swims into the skies, a star somewhat obscured, but none the less in our view—a star of the first magnitude—Adelbaran among our pasty twinklers—we should like to know for the future of English literature whether he is a young man, or in middle life. . . . The genius of the book might as well be a grown mans' as a boy's—it is ageless as genius always is."—The Saturday Review (London).

WHITEWASH

12mo. Net, $1.90

Whitewash, as you may guess, is symbolic in Mr. Vachell's story. It stands for the conditions of life that held Cicely Chandos, a very modern girl, a prisoner in the conventions and traditions of the eighteenth century. The gracious Lady Selina was the embodiment of them all. Everybody for different reasons conspired to keep her in ignorance of what might destroy her conceptions of the world. The doctor, the curate, even the tenants themselves who suffered most at her hands kept up the play. But there was young Dr. Grimshaw, a veritable 20th Century Crusader. After he came Cicely saw beneath the whitewash of her life, but she would finally have succumbed to the fate of more whitewash at the hands of Lord Wilverly if it had not been for Tiddy, irrepressible daughter of Sir Nathaniel. She turned the trick and well—the reality of life won out.

Mr. Vachell has told not only a charming love story among the villages and estates of rural England but something of deeper significance.

By VIRGINIA WOOLF

THE VOYAGE OUT

12mo. Net, $2.25

There is something greater than talent that marks this book. Cleverness it undoubtedly has. But there are as well its humor, its sense of irony, poignancy of emotion and profound originality which bring it near to genius.

THE VOYAGE OUT is Mrs. Woolf's first novel. The London Spectator says of it: "THE VOYAGE OUT is that rarest of things, a novel of serious artistic value. . . . Above all, Mrs. Woolf is a consummate artist in writing."

Here indeed is a book which attains unity as surely as "Wuthering Heights," though by a different path. It is absolutely unafraid, with the courage that springs not from naivete but from education, and it soars straight out of local questioning into the intellectual day.

By JOHN COURNOS

THE MASK

12mo. Net, $1.90

That this unique novel has created world interest is attested by the fact that it is soon to be published in France, Sweden and Germany: the English publication having preceded the American.

American reviewers have written as follows:

"To report that a novel leaves the reader breathless will perhaps make a seasoned reader of book reviews smile, but it describes faithfully the effect which John Cournos' THE MASK has had upon your reviewer. So powerful is the realism of this novel that to go through it is not only to witness but even to experience the sensations of a share in the lives of its characters."—New York Sun and Herald.

"Whenever a man talks about himself he lies. . . . The exceptions are Rousseau, Cellini, Bashkirtseff and in such truthful company John Cournos belongs. His spiritual self-revelations have, indeed, the searching candor, the fearless sincerity and the poignant sensitiveness to be found nowhere else than in the great classical autobiographies. . . . Not to be enthralled by the burning intensity of it is quite impossible."—Philadelphia Press.

"It is the poetry in this novel that makes its starkness endurable. Behind the welter of life that it presents is an irresistible impulse to live with mastery, with beauty, with meaning."—New York Times.

"If I am not mistaken, THE MASK will excite enthusiasm and hostility. . . . It is written by a Russian by birth who came with his parents to this country when he was a boy, had to struggle for a livelihood and later went to England, where he is now well known as a translator of Russian fiction, a poet and a journalist. . . . The intimacy of the revelation in this book is the sort of intimacy that not every artist, but only a great one, can achieve. The series of memories of John Gambarov, a Russian Jew, which make the book, memories that taken alone seem episodic, but taken together form the pattern of the growth of a soul."—The Chicago Post.

Author of "Nocturne," "Shops and Houses," etc.

SEPTEMBER

12mo. Net, $1.90

SEPTEMBER is unlike any other novel that Mr. Swinnerton has written, but it has all of the dramatic intensity of NOCTURNE. It is a tale of passionate conflict in love between two strongly contrasted temperaments: Marion Forster, the mature woman still beautifully young, and Cherry Mant, undeveloped, strangely sophisticated, fascinating. Nothing that Mr. Swinnerton has done so finely shows his understanding insight into the heart as the struggle and yet the friendship and affection between these two women. The action takes place at the Forsters' country place and reaches a climax in London. Over and above the story, wonderfully sustained, broods the mood of September, the autumnal quality in Marion's life.

"QUEEN LUCIA"

12mo. Net, $2.00

Foremost among those novelists who are able to portray the spirit and essence of English life is E. F. Benson, who blends in his work the strains of Dickens and Chaucer—the one for his humor and insight into the lives and motives of his countrymen, the other for the versatility of his story telling.

This comedy of life in a sleepy English village in which a most amusing lady named Lucia undertakes to play the part of a modern Lorenzo de Medici to the cultural Renaissance of her neighbors, makes one of Mr. Benson's most charming and whimsical stories.

SNAKE-BITE

12mo. Net, $1.90

Not since "The Garden of Allah" has Robert Hichens so put into a story the spirit of the desert as in "Snake-Bite." The mystery and spell of the great waste spaces of the East live again in this tale.

"Snake-Bite," one of the principal stories in a book of little novels, is among the finest romances of the desert that have come from Mr. Hichens' pen.

When he writes of Africa, the hot sands trickle over his pages; when he writes of men who are haunted by ghosts, they are so near one could touch them; and when he writes of human love and passion intermingled with these mighty themes, he reaches the acme of literary craftsmanship.

Every page twinkles and sparkles with the most cheerful pessimism."—English National News. "DELIGHTFUL PROSE IRONIST. 'The Farcical History of Richard Greenow' is a brilliant piece of work. His stories have a touch of elfish humor."—Daily News.

THE SIXTH SENSE

12mo. Net, $1.90

With "Sonia" and "Sonia Married" Mr. McKenna stepped into the limelight as a very able and uncommongly perceptive novelist who knows from the inside out the dazzling existence enjoyed by the intellectual and fashionable youth of London.
This story, one of Mr. McKenna's earlier books, is a study of the modern young woman. An uncompromising realist might accuse Mr. McKenna of employing the warm colors of romance in his portraits. It is true and it is the presence of the richer tones which makes his novels so convincingly real. Mr. McKenna does not blink the truth, but he sets it forth with a humor and human sympathy which makes his stories wholly delightful.

THE GOLDEN GOAT

Translated from the French of Paul Arène 12mo. Net, $1.90

A delicate stirring beauty pervades this novel of old Provence. Woven about a legend of buried treasure, it tells how two lovers gave up the promise of golden riches to make sure of keeping their love. A veritable gem among stories—one of those refreshing tales which renew the spirit of youth in the world.
"The Golden Goat" is the third in a series of translation of the French Classics undertaken by Frances Wilson Huard, that talented American-French writer to whom we owe some of the most memorable books which interpreted to America the spirit of France during the war years. The series began with Baroness Huard's translation of Maurice Barries's "Collete Baudoche" and Alfred de Vigny's "Military Servitude and Grandeur."

PAINTED MEADOWS

12mo. Net, $1.90

Sophie Kerr has impressed upon this story the two qualities of her mind which have made her work of growing interest for several years. The one is a natural, direct, unaffected realism toward her characters. The other is a very keen sense of dramatic values and of that atmosphere which gives drama its real richness and effect.

PAINTED MEADOWS is an engrossing story of two men and a girl set in a quiet, lovely old Southern town. Behind the three principals are the highly individualized figures of Anna's father, thumbing over the mortgages upon half the town's real estate; Seth's mother, a remarkable portrait of the intensely possessive parent; and the other men and women whose lives are affected by the romantic drama which Sophie Kerr unfolds. The contrast between the old-garden quietude of the background and the highly emotional and intense conflict of her characters is an achievement of finely controlled power.

PENNY PLAIN

12mo. Net, $1.90

A happy story of happy people in the quaint and charming atmosphere of a Scottish village.

"Penny Plain" but "Pound Happy" were Jean and the brothers she mothered in the darling old world cottage, quite the most colorful and home-like place in the world.

How suddenly romance crossed its threshold in the persons of two such different people as the Honorable Pamela, weary of the world's adoration and the bitter old millionaire who came to claim the house as his own, and how this romance was trebled by the appearance of Biddy, who was a Lord and hated it—of such delightful happenings is this story which lifts one out of drab commonplaceness into the realm of youthful make-believe.

BY MARGARET CULKIN BANNING

THIS MARRYING

12mo. Net, $1.75

A first novel as fresh and stimulating as a Spring breeze—the story of a new sort of girl, neither an emancipated woman nor a clinging vine, who finds life, love and a big problem in a newspaper office. Horatia is a modern girl, feminine and lovable but with a real head on her shoulders. How she faced life and made her own decisions on the things that really matter in a woman's life is a human and appealing story in which some very novel situations develop. Mrs. Banning's work is sure to appeal to that wide audience which is always on the look out for the new and interesting in fiction.

INVINCIBLE MINNIE

12mo. Net, $2.00

"A new American novel of exceptional distinction. Here is a new American novelist. 'Invincible Minnie' is her first book, and it is a work of indubitable power and art. It is thoroughly American, thoroughly modern, a thoroughly human story with all the lights and shades which make human nature at once pitiable and sordid, charming and inexplicable. Minnie is an achievement; she is the most extraordinary woman in recent American fiction."—Boston Evening Transcript.

"Mrs. Holding has added a throbbing, outstanding figure to the peopling of American fiction. 'Invincible Minnie' appears to us to be the most amazing novel of the year."—New York World.

"The book is big. . . . A vindication of America's capacity to produce sincere writers."—Philadelphia North American.

"When you have made the acquaintance of Mrs. Holding's 'Minnie,' you will know what a 'mere woman' is. The author's realism is applied to the portrayal of persons and things with a discretion only possible to an artist with an instinctive sense of tone and color values in relation to composition."—Oliver Herford in the New York Post.

"I have read 'Invincible Minnie' with consuming interest. It is a curious fact that the 'Invincible Minnies' of this world, dominating it as they do through sheer primitive instinct, have so far almost entirely escaped the attention of novelists and fiction writers generally. . . . Minnie is as inevitable as fate: she is sublime and sordid; ugly and yet strangely beautiful; creative and destructive; stupid and wise. She is instinct, sex and unconscious cruelty. She is a throwback to savagery, and yet fulfilling blindly that law of nature which is creation. Altogether Minnie is one of the most interesting books I have read in years."—Mary Roberts Rinehart.

HELPING HERSEY

12mo. Net, $1.90

A new book by the author of "Pam" and "Happy House" comes with a record of excellence and popularity that are unusual in current fiction. This is a thoroughly delightful and entertaining group of short stories, charmingly done as is everything the Baroness touches, unexpectedly dramatic, subtly human.

The title story is a very original love story, the others vary in theme, but they are all about real people and the sad, merry, exciting things that complicate their lives.

VERENA IN THE MIDST

12mo. Net, $1.90

A new novel by E. V. Lucas is always an event. It is now three years since American readers have heard from him and in this very characteristic story one picks up afresh some of the people of that old favorite, THE VERMILLION BOX. Here again is Richard Haven; and it is distinctly a Lucas conceit that Verna Raby on her invalid's couch should become the storm-centre of love affairs, plots and counterplots.
This book has a charm, a subtle appeal of atmosphere and a happy whimsicality that sets it apart. For a space Mr. Lucas peoples the world anew and makes a very human and agreeable place of it, jolly to dwell in and amusing to remember.

YOUNG HEARTS

12mo. Net, $1.90

Any one who has enjoyed Mrs. Buckrose's delicate humorous story telling in any of her half dozen novels like "A Batchelor's Comedy," "The Silent Legion," "The Gossip Shop," need not be told what a delightful story she makes of the doings of a city-bred gentleman who feeling the call of the soil uproots his family from the town where he has been the local big bug and plants them again in a rural community. His efforts to run his neighbors' affairs according to his theories of life-as-it-should-be-lived-in-the-country, the unexpected romances of his two very different daughters who had submitted martyr-like to be buried alive in the country—mirth and tenderness and a subtle appreciation of human nature, these are the elements of a refreshing story of young hearts and country living.

THE LITTLE WARRIOR

12mo. Net, $2.00

Laughter ripples over every page of this latest and gayest romance of P. G. Wodehouse. Mr. Wodehouse is one of these happy mortals born with the power to turn everything he touches into "a source of innocent merriment," to quote Gilbert and Sullivan. Indeed, there is more than a superficial resemblance between these creators of superb comedy. Seen through Wodehouse's rose-colored glasses, told in his own joyous brand of English-American slang even the most serious situation takes on a merry aspect. To read one of his novels is to enjoy in book-form the best comic opera of current fiction.

No one in America or England today is writing anything like this amusing romantic farce with a racy savor all its own. If you happen to be one who cares not only for good entertainment but for good craftsmanship as natural as it is perfect—read "The Little Warrior."

THE WILDCAT

12mo. Net, $1.90

"Wildcat," the happy-hearted, considers that the income derived from the mowing of lawns and the shaking of dice is sufficient unto the day, and no man has seen tomorrow. Absolutely contented with life is "Wildcat." Then the call to adventure sounds. "Wildcat" goes to meet it against his will, trembling but philosophical.

This is the negro story at its best. It shows the black man in his new relationship to modern life. Though half a century separates him from the leisurely and romantic ante-bellum days, he still wears the contagious smile, the irrepressible good humor that he has ever turned toward life. These adventures of a whimsical hero are full of merriment and a lively gusto for the gaieties of the hour.

THE ADORABLE DREAMER

12mo. Net, $1.90

A unique picture of a whimsical, very clever and temperamental girl who once in a naughty mood of cynicism wrote a book called "Garbage" and became a celebrity, fêted by artists of the revolt. But a literary career does not satisfy her ardent soul, nor causes, nor love as she knows it in the devotion of many admirers. In her craving for the truth and beauty of life, Penelope, "the Adorable Dreamer," wanders far afield and then quite unexpectedly comes the one lover in the world.
Penelope is a veritable "Peter Pan" among women, following elusive ideals with a gay hopefulness which endear her irresistibly to the reader, and Miss Kirby tells Penelope's story with a gossamer lightness and fanciful humor that are wholly delightful.

HAPPY HOUSE

12mo. Net, $1.75

The author of that brilliant story, PAM has achieved another success in HAPPY HOUSE which dramatizes a crisis in the life of an English novelist when she uses her own family as characters in a novel. On the authority of a writer in the British Weekly, this woman author is a well-known London figure and the circumstances of the story, unbelievable as they are, are really true. Baroness von Hutten has sketched a charming picture of an unusual and delightful personality, in Violet Walbridge, successful novelist and object of ill-concealed derision to her unsuccessful husband and her very modern sons and daugters. Out of this situation grows a tragi-comic story, told with humor and sympathy, which has a quality not very often met with, a sense of reality seen through the eye of an understanding at once just and tender. HAPPY HOUSE is an unusually delightful book. It comes under the head of light fiction but it is written seriously and sincerely.

MRS. CRADDOCK

12mo. Net, $1.90

MRS. CRADDOCK is an earlier novel by the author of "The Moon and Sixpence," and by some critics is declared his best work as a novelist. Its publication at this time is of particular interest, painting as it does the modern woman at her best and at her worst.

"MRS. CRADDOCK—which I take to be Mr. Maugham's best work as a novelist—is a sex-satire punctuated by four curtains, two of tragedy and two of comedy. He could hardly have bettered this study of an impulsive and exigent woman rising at the outset to the height of a bold and womanly choice in defiance of social prejudice and family tradition, and then relapsing under the disillusions of marriage into the worst and weakest failings of her class."—The London Bookman.

THE HERMIT OF FAR END

12mo. Net, $1.75

This author is new to American readers, but her books have had a very large popular success in England. This, the first novel to be published here, blends quite happily the charm of an attractive style with the elements that make a novel highly enjoyable everywhere: interesting and very human people, a marked sense of the dramatic, a mystery that is finally unlocked by the power of love. Garth Trent and the secret that was locked up with him in the lonely house on the cliffs is a story that will make its appeal to everyone who likes a "better" book. The publishers are glad to introduce to American readers a writer of such promise.

No living writer of adventurous love tales works with a surer hand than Mr. Chambers. Here in one breathless story is caught up the black magic of ancient China together with the mysterious workings of a vast secret society whose tentacles spread westward to the United States. The part played by Thressa Norne, for years a captive temple girl in China, in undoing the plots of this band, is a story that even Mr. Chambers would have trouble in matching in his long list of exciting tales.

Bull-Dog Drummond, D.S.O., M.C., returned from the wars, finds civilian life dull, flat and unprofitable. But before he finishes with the scrap into which fate flings him, he begins to think that little affair of 1914-1918 was mere child's play. It is really a whale of a trick to be able to slip away when things get a bit too thick—but there is one drawback; the eyes of love cannot be defeated by its magic, and two ladies are in love with him! Thereby hangs a tale.

CATHY ROSSITER

Cathy Rossiter, the heroine of Mrs. Victor Rickard's new novel, is probably the most interesting and vital character that she has yet drawn. The warmth, beauty and frankness of her personality quite outshine the very great beauty of her person. There is a dash and gallantry about her which is endearing.

An aristocrat by birth, and a democrat by choice, she is tremendously interested in life and social conditions in England after the war, and she seeks some purpose to which she can devote her magnetic personality. The result is Larrimore, brief happiness and an experience which is almost unbelievable, until finally she reaches the haven of a happy marriage.

The "fifty-seven" varieties of American husband who trip it lightly over the inimitable pages of Wallace Irwin's latest book are splendid, well-developed specimens of the domesticated capricorn species.

Take the case of Americus Gallop, as an instance of how a home may be wrecked by the refining influence of a woman's presence. Like many another Ulysses, returning unexpectedly after a hard season on the road, this worthy member of society found his house profaned by stranger influences, effete Athenians as it were, having draped the altar of Poseidon with art-chintz, and apparently nothing remained for Ulysses but to pay the bill.

HAPPILY MARRIED

12mo, Net, $1.75

Mrs. Harris is never so happy in her social portraiture as when she is staging for us those inner scenes of domestic life which take place behind the decorative façades that look haughtily upon the outer world. She unfolds her story with characteristic humor and an almost uncanny knowledge of her men and women. The entire society of Sulgrave is involved. The women's club is torn by the violence of the Madden earthquake. The husbands, driven together for mutual support, decide upon a domestic reform which all but wrecks their days. It is out of this chaos that the figure of Mary Madden rises, increasingly strong, resourceful, femininely appealing—a woman of latent power who meets a crisis unflinchingly and works her will by sheer charm and determination to have and to hold her own.

Thrill, pluck, daring, quick wits, rapid action, success, defeat, laughter and heartbreak: These people and these qualities give these stories a humanity and a vividness that make the book decidedly worth while.

Such a program he has presented in the inspiring chapters of this timely and vital book. The chapters of this volume were delivered as The Merrick Lectures for 1919.

As a study of the religious resources of the world for the preservation of peace the book is not addressed primarily to the Church, but to that larger group of people who hold very little to the demands and commands of ecclesiastical establishments, but who are still tremendously responsive to the idealism of Christ, realizing that it is the political, economic and biological, as well as the personal and logical, necessity of the world.

Illustrated, 12mo. Net, $1.75

Is America being destroyed, like Ancient Greece and Rome, by Immorality? This is the startling question raised by Doctor Straton's book. The author believes in a real devil and a "real hell for real sinners." He believes that much of the preaching today is too soft—too spineless, so he trains a whole broadside of righteous invective and indignation upon the devil and all his works. His arraignment of Worldliness in the Churches is merciless, the facts which he gives are startling, and his picturesque and uncompromising presentation is gripping and profoundly stirring. THE ARGONAUTS OF FAITH

The adventures of the "Mayflower" Pilgrims.

With Illustrations in color. 12mo. Net, $1.50

This is the story of the Pilgrims told for younger readers. Simple and direct and in close conformity with the historical records, this narrative still remains one of the greatest romantic tales of man's adventurous spirit. No legend of Greek or Roman literature surpasses it in beauty, in daring and in faith. Now that the eyes of Europe and America are turned upon the events of three hundred years ago, this book has particular appeal.

Viscount Bryce says: "It is by their faith and courage that the men who sailed in the Mayflower won undying fame. The memory of what they were and what they did is to-day one of the strongest links that bind America and England together. They set a noble example for the youth of England as well as for the youth of America to remember and to imitate. It is an example in which the generation now called upon, as it reaches manhood, to make good the losses of the war, may find stimulus and cheer. A time has now come again, as it came three centuries ago, in which faith and courage and constancy and the hopefulness which courage gives, must have their perfect work.

NOTE—

In view of the increasingly high costs of manufacture, and a consequent instability of prices which materially reduces the value of any catalogue, we are limiting the list which follows to the titles of those books of which the prices have been changed since July 1919, and to new titles. For older books, refer to the Trade List of 1919, noting that those prices also are subject to change.
